

U.S. Is Skeptical Viet Cong Want To Discuss War At United Nations

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON — Government officials acknowledged privately Tuesday that a member of the United Nations Secretariat told the United States delegation last October that the National Liberation Front, political arm of the Viet Cong, had expressed a desire to send representatives to the organization.
These officials expressed the opinion that the Viet Cong intended to use such a visit to lobby for their cause among the General Assembly members.

They indicated they were skeptical about reports that the Viet Cong wanted to participate in formal discussions of the Vietnam war at the United Nations.
The United States, without being able to confirm independently the Viet Cong's intentions, sought to deflect this move by raising the possibility of Viet Cong participation in a Security Council discussion of the Vietnam war.
Arthur J. Goldberg, the chief U.S. delegate to the United Nations, testified before Congress on Nov. 2 that the United States was prepared to vote for an invitation to the Viet Cong from the Security Council.

At the time, this was reported as an important shift in the administration's public position and was assumed to be an independent initiative taken by the administration to make future approaches to the Security Council more meaningful.
Officials acknowledged today, however, that it had been triggered in part at least by the private soundings of the U.N. Secretariat.
A few days after Goldberg's statement, the U.S. privately informed the Secretary General Thant that Washington was prepared to issue visas to Viet Cong representatives to allow them to participate in Security Council deliberations.

But American officials said the U.S. sidestepped, and thereby blocked at least temporarily, a suggestion from the U.N. Secretariat that the Viet Cong might come to the United Nations at the invitation of the General Assembly or of Thant.
But officials conceded that the Secretary General has sufficient authority to invite Viet Cong representatives to the U.N. and that, under the United Nations headquarters agreement with the United States, Washington would be legally obliged to issue the necessary visas.

No Secretary General has exercised this authority thus far, but it was understood that the Secretariat's sounding last October might have been a prelude to such action.
The U.S. prefers, and is presently preparing to channel, U.N. discussion of the Vietnam war to the Security Council rather than let it arise in the General Assembly or allow the Viet Cong an opportunity to lobby in the United Nations corridor.

Washington believes it would have a better opportunity to answer the Viet Cong and to limit their activities if these were restricted to a Security Council debate. The administration reportedly fears that a General Assembly debate with Viet Cong participation could lead to increased international pressures for a halt to American bombing of North Vietnam and military withdrawal from the South.

Top Of The Morning

WEATHER

The weather outlook today calls for considerable cloudiness, slightly warmer temperatures and occasional light rain. The extended forecast through Dec. 11 indicates mild weather will continue with daytime high temperatures in the middle and upper 40's and the overnight low readings generally in the lower 30's. It will be warm throughout the period with the highest temperatures expected in the early part of next week. Precipitation is expected during the period occurring as showers Thursday through Saturday. Tuesday's 7 a.m. report: High 44 degrees, low 28 degrees. The river level is 5.53 feet and falling. There was no precipitation recorded.

Kinzua Dam Report

Pool level 1305.44. Upstream temperature 38 degrees down stream temperature 39 degrees. Reading at the Warren gauge 5.56 feet.

WARREN COUNTY

A Youngsville woman injured in an automobile accident Nov. 26 on Yankee Bush road was pronounced dead at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday at St. Vincent Hospital, Erie. Rose M. Freeborough of 512 N. Main st. died of head injuries sustained in the accident according to Dr. Lareko Palma. This brings the Warren County death on the highway total to 22, three in the borough and one in the county due to a heart attack at the wheel of the vehicle involved.

THE NATION

An antipoverty bill that approaches the spending level requested by the administration was approved by a House-Senate conference committee. The bill authorizes $1.98-billion for the current fiscal year, which began July 1, and $2.18-billion for the next year.

A Senate-House conference committee agreed on a meat inspection bill that will extend federal standards to all meat-packing and processing plants. This action, hailed as a victory for consumers, could be approved by the House and Senate Wednesday and signed by the President this week.

THE WORLD

Canada must become officially bilingual, a royal commission declared on Tuesday. In a 200-page first volume that followed a four-year study, the commission said that the French language must be elevated to official equality with English to preserve the confederation. Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson told the Commons that his government would give the recommendations "serious and urgent appraisal."

There were reports in the Capital that the Viet Cong may have indicated a willingness to come to the United Nations. American officials said that a member of the U. N. Secretariat told the United States delegation to the world body last October that the National Liberation Front, political arm of the Viet Cong, had expressed a desire to send representatives to the U.N. The Johnson administration was skeptical, because the Front and North Vietnam have opposed any U.N. involvement in the war. However, the probe partly triggered the recent U.S. shift toward giving the Viet Cong an audience in the Security Council, the sources said.

SPORTS

Sheffield High's cagers and Eisenhower's wrestlers were the only county teams posting victories last night. Wayne Swanson scored 33 points to spark the Wolverines to a 89-70 triumph over Elk County Christian in the season opener for the Orange and Black. The Knights got pins from Ralph Spicer, Owen Williams and Paul Cathcart on the way to a 27-19 victory over Salamanca. Page 12.

The basketball teams at Warren, Eisenhower and Youngsville were losers, the Dragons on their home court and both the Knights and Eagles on the road. Poor shooting, with each team making only 14 shots from the floor, accounted for Warren's 52-46 loss to the visiting Bradford Owls. Eisenhower got a 21-point performance from Bob Burlingame, but went down to defeat at the hands of North East, 87-50. Denny Walton, George Nelson and Tom Burligh all hit in the double figures for the Eagles, who were nosed out by Clarion, 72-70. Page 12.

On the national sports scene, Houston, Vanderbilt and Kentucky all won games Monday night to retain their ranking in college basketball's Top Ten. Bing Devine of the New York Mets replaced Stan Musial as general manager of the St. Louis Cardinals and the U.S. Air Force released Bill Bradley earlier than expected and the former Princeton star will join the New York Knicks for the remainder of the NBA season. SUPERSTRUCTURE FOR POWERHOUSE

The superstructure for the powerhouse being constructed in the Allegheny Reservoir area by the Hunt-Conkey Construction Co. now spans the man-made chasm at the dam. At the bottom of the construction site is the draft tube for the No. 2 conduit. This is the tube through which water from the reservoir will travel to the upper reservoir. On its return trip from the hilltop, the water, after passing through the generator-turbine sitting atop the vertical structure, will be discharged either into the Allegheny River or back into the reservoir, depending upon needs as determined by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. ## 17th Fatality Viet Cong Ravage Village Near Cambodian Frontier

State police of the Warrens yesterday recorded their 17th fatality as a result of a traffic accident.

Rose M. Freeborough, 41, of 512 N. Main st., Youngsville, was pronounced dead at 5:30 p.m., December 5, 1967, at St. Vincent Hospital, Erie, by Dr. Lareko Palma, who said the victim died from brain damage. The accident occurred at 1:50 p.m., November 26 on Yankee Bush road (LR 61025) when a car operated by Mrs. Freeborough, traveling north, spun out of control, went over a large embankment and sideswiped a large tree. The driver, police said, was found lying on the front floor of the vehicle with her head hanging outside a partially open front door.

The death of Mrs. Freeborough brings the Warren County death on the highway total to 22, three in the borough and one in the county due to a heart attack at the wheel of the vehicle involved. Two of the fatal accidents were investigated by state police of the Corry substation.

Fundamental Issues Must Be Resolved

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson said Tuesday the threat of war over Cyprus has been averted but the world must now work "with a sense of urgency" to resolve the fundamental issues in the dispute.

He made the comment in welcoming Cyrus R. Vance, former deputy secretary of defense and his special trouble shooter in the Cyprus dispute which involves two U.S. allies—Greece and Turkey.

Vance declined to discuss any details of his talks with Greek, Turkish and Cypriot leaders, saying he had made a commitment in advance of the discussions that they would remain confidential.

Bradford Marine Is Viet Victim

SAIGON (AP) — A Viet Cong battalion ravaged a South Vietnamese village in the central highlands near the Cambodian frontier Tuesday with grenades and flame throwers. About 50 casualties were listed in varied reports from the scene, none confirmed.

Whether for sheer terrorism or an effort to lure allied troops to some nearby battleground of the Communists' choosing, about 400 guerrillas knifed in early morning darkness into Dak Song, a "New Life" hamlet on Highway 14 about 130 miles northeast of Saigon.

The U.S. mission said its latest reports were that the Viet Cong killed about 20 persons, wounded 30 and burned 30 or 40 homes. Another account said four militiamen and a civilian had been killed, 15 persons were wounded and 29 were missing. Communications with the area were difficult. The U.S. mission's first word was that the Viet Cong had killed 300 villagers. This would have been the worst terrorist attack of the war. Later, however, Wilbur Wilson, an American official, relayed the 20-30 figures to Saigon, remarking that the casualty toll "is much reduced." Wilson is assistant director of the U.S. Civil Operations and Revolutionary Development Support office for the area in which Dak Song is located. The "New Life" hamlets are government-sponsored settlements ordinarily considered formidable targets for any Communist forays. The people of Dak Song, like most of those in South Vietnam's mountain villages, apparently are Montagnards, tribal groups which sometimes fight the Viet Cong as irregulars under the direction of U.S. Green Beret advisers. Wilson said information he had received so far gave no indication why the hamlet had been attacked, with the resulting casualties to civilians and destruction of homes. There has been some feeling in official quarters that an intensified series of Communist

Ambassador Bohlin Succeeds Kohler For Political Affairs

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson appointed career diplomat Charles E. Bohlin Tuesday to replace Foy D. Kohler as deputy undersecretary of state for political affairs.

Bohlin has been ambassador to France for the past five years.

Kohler resigned to join the faculty of the University of Miami where he will teach international affairs. He was in the foreign service for 36 years.

The No. 4 position at the State Department, now vacated by Kohler, is regarded as the highest post a career diplomat can reach. The top posts of secretary and two undersecretaries are usually held by political appointees.

Both Kohler and Bohlin belong to a small group of authorities on Communism. Both speak Russian and both were ambassadors to Moscow. Bohlin in 1953-1957, Kohler in 1962-1966.

Kohler's resignation came as a surprise, but authoritative sources said he informed the President and Secretary of State Dean Rusk after his return from Moscow about his ambitions to go into teaching and, as one informant put it, to share with students his experience in international affairs.

Money was certainly a factor in his decision, an informant acknowledged. Kohler, having served more than 35 years, will get 70 per cent of his present pay of $27,500 as his pension plus whatever he will get at the university, which could be considerably more than his government salary.

Kohler is 59, Bohlin 63. Both are career ambassadors, the highest rank in the foreign service. When Kohler retires, there will be only six left in this exclusive group.

President John F. Kennedy appointed both men in the same week in August 1962 to Moscow and Paris respectively. Kohler returned four years later to become deputy undersecretary but Bohlin stayed on for the unusually long tour of duty of more than five years.

School Aid Bill Clears Civil Rights Hurdle

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON — The administration's $14.5 billion school aid bill cleared a major civil rights hurdle Tuesday, but still faced a possible southern filibuster over desegregation issues.

In a surprise move Tuesday night, Sen. Everett McKinley Dirksen of Illinois withdrew an anti-busing amendment that had tied up the Senate for two days. This proposal would have barred use of federal funds to transport pupils and teachers by bus to achieve racial balance. Dirksen hinted broadly that he might seek to attach the amendment to some other bill.

Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., floor manager for the school bill, had said in the late afternoon that he had the votes to defeat the anti-busing proposal. But Southern Democrats had opened what some called "a mini-buster" talkathon in an apparent effort to keep the matter from coming to a vote.

"I'm beginning to detect the beginnings of a filibuster in the air," Morse said gloomily. Dirksen withdrew his amendment scarcely an hour later, after conferring with the Senate Majority Leader, Mike Mansfield of Montana.

The principal provisions of the mammoth school aid bill are not under serious attack, although a handful of Senators wish to trim the $14.5 billion, three-year authorization. The bill would extend the authorization of federal aid to elementary and secondary schools, starting next July 1.

The bulk of the money would go into slum-area schools. The bill also provides for a wide assortment of school assistance, including supplementary educational centers, textbooks and library books, and aid to schools in areas of federal installations.

The threat of a filibuster is still a lively possibility. Southern Senators have prepared a series of amendments that would tie the hands of federal officials issuing desegregation regulations.

Conferees OK Continuing Antipoverty Program

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON — A House-Senate conference committee approved Tuesday night a bill that would continue the antipoverty program at a level close to that requested by President Johnson.

The bill, which emerged after 11 days of negotiations, calls for an authorization of $1.98 billion for the current fiscal year, which began July 1, and $2.18 billion for the following year.

The bill also retains the amendment inserted in the House that would permit local governments to take charge of community action agencies now run by private agencies and the Office of Economic Opportunity in Washington. However, it would delay the effective date of that provision until Feb. 1, 1969.

Senate conferees, however, succeeded in eliminating a House amendment that would have required local antipoverty agencies to put up half of their 20 per cent contributions to their programs in cash. Many agencies now make this contribution in services and facilities and antipoverty officials said many poor communities could not raise that much cash.

Royal Commission Reports On English-French Friction

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
OTTAWA — A Royal Commission declared Tuesday that the status of the French language spoken by nearly one-third of the 20 million Canadians must be elevated to official equality with English if the 100-year-old confederation is to be preserved.

Canada is far from bilingual, the commission concluded "unanimously" after a four-year study that cost the government $7 million. Its report suggested that the only province approaching widespread use at least officially of both English and French is Quebec. The report was designed in large part to head off a secessionist movement that has recently gained momentum in Quebec.

The commission said its nationwide survey revealed "the wholly inadequate way in which present laws (federal and local) give effect to the concept of the country as an equal partnership between two linguistic communities."

Canada therefore remains in a "crisis," it was stated. This term used in an interim report two years ago "shocked many Canadians," the commission said, "it was our conviction that the problem was deep-seated and that Canada was facing national crisis." "This is still the situation," the commission added.

Prime Minister Lester Pearson assured the House of Commons tonight that his government would give the commission's recommendations "serious and urgent appraisal."

"The government fully endorses the principle of linguistic and cultural equality that forms the core of this report," he said.

Pearson noted, however, that only three of the 14 recommendations lay within the jurisdiction of the federal government.

Today's 200-page volume, the first of a half-dozen to come later, focused on Canada's two-language problem and how to solve it. Other volumes dealing with cultural, educational, governmental and social problems are to follow.

The language difficulty is, however, considered the basic cause of Canada's "two solitudes." To eradicate this linguistic separatism the commission recommended first that English and French become the official languages in the federal parliament, the federal courts and all departments of the federal establishment.

They'll Be On Tonight

Crews started work at 5 a.m. Wednesday morning, stringing a mile and a half of cable so that the Christmas lights all over Warren could be turned on simultaneously.

The special, all-weather cable being installed is a permanent installation, according to Abe Schwartz, chairman of Christmas lighting for the Warren Area Chamber of Commerce, and will solve difficulties presently being encountered for many years to come. The new Christmas lighting, pole lights, started last year, has been expanded this year to provide a really new look throughout the downtown shopping center, Schwartz said. But the special wiring and connections proved more than anticipated.

Real efforts are being made, he said, to expedite the new wiring. Areas which were in darkness Tuesday night should be lighted Wednesday night. Members of the Warren Jaycees turn on the lights each night.

Convention Delegates Will Act On Procedural Rules Wednesday

HARRISBURG (AP) — An 18-member temporary rules committee released Tuesday its suggestions for revising the operating regulations of Pennsylvania's constitutional convention.

The procedural rules will be acted upon by convention delegates Wednesday. If adopted, they will permit the delegates to begin in earnest their task of revising four key areas of the state's 93-year-old constitution.

Former Gov. William W. Scranton, rules committee co-chairman, said the revised preparatory committee regulations were designed to permit the convention to function as "un-partisan-like" as possible.

Scranton's co-chairman, former state Sen. Robert P. Casey, called the proposals "fair, equitable and well-considered for the success of this convention."

The major recommendations included:

— Delegates be seated alphabetically rather than by senatorial districts.

— Committee membership be expanded so each delegate may be given a committee assignment.

— Delegates be permitted to debate committee recommendations for 15 minutes, rather than for 10 minutes.

Scranton, rules committee co-chairman, and Casey, first vice-president, said they expected the operating proposals to be adopted Wednesday with little difficulty.

"I think it's important to set the tone for the convention, and that's what the rules committee tried to do," Casey said.

"And I think it's a very good tone," Scranton added.

Both men also stressed that most of the suggested changes in the rules had been made by delegates, themselves, not by the rules committee.

Earlier, convention delegates were urged to consider whether the U.S. Supreme Court's so-called one-man-one-vote rule should be applied to local government units.

Committee Recommends Alphabetical Seating

HARRISBURG (AP) — While it is impossible to hide the political identity of each delegate to the constitutional convention, a temporary rules committee proposed at least to subordinate party labels.

The political affiliations of the 150 elected delegates were clearly established last November when they were selected on a party basis in each of the 50 senatorial districts.

But the rules committee, the convention's first working panel, recommended that each delegate be seated alphabetically without regard to his political affiliation or senatorial district.

This was going one step further than the recommendation of a 13-man legislative preparatory committee, which had drafted the original rules. The legislative committee had proposed alphabetical seating according to senatorial district.

Convention officials regarded seating as the first major decision confronting the delegates in determining whether the session would have political overtones.

The alphabetical recommendation was, without question, a step to avoid the political bickering which hamstrung the recently concluded, 10 million convention in New York, where delegates were seated on a majority-minority party basis.

Most Pennsylvania officials believe a major factor in the

The suggestion was made by David Stahl, Pittsburgh city solicitor, and director of the preparatory committee's task force on legislative apportionment, in a detailed briefing on apportionment proposals.

Stahl, a former state attorney general, said that while the applicability of the one-man-one-vote rule to local government has not been directly decided by the U.S. Supreme Court, many state and lower federal courts have applied the guideline to local government units.

The convention could consider the matter, Stahl said, if a "liberal view" is applied to its mandate to examine the constitution's local government section.

"Under a liberal view" Stahl said, "it may be argued that the legislature intended to permit the convention to consider all aspects of local government organization, including the apportionment of local legislative bodies."

On the broader issue of apportionment of the House and Senate, Stahl told the delegates they would be free to change the sizes of both bodies if they followed the one-man-one-vote rule.

The most common population base for apportionment, and the one now used in Pennsylvania, Stahl said, is the federal census taken every 10 years.

Stahl said the courts have said the census figures appear to be a "rational approach to readjustment of legislative representation."

The delegates were cautioned by Stahl that his report was "a briefing, and nothing else," and that their decisions would have to be based on the formal legal advice prepared by the convention staff.

Tuesday's session was set aside as "Congressional Day," and 11 of Pennsylvania's 29 member congressional delegation attended the morning ceremony.

Committee appointments are to be made by Lt. Gov. Raymond J. Broderick, the convention president, after the rules are adopted Wednesday.

Discuss Pause In Fighting For Christmas

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and South Vietnam are in consultation with all indications on a Christmas and New Year's Day pause in the fighting.

State Department press officer Robert J. McCloskey said today that the consultations are under way and that consideration still is being given to the military stand-down.

Assistant Secretary of State William P. Bundy in a transatlantic television interview with the British Broadcasting Corp. indicated the Johnson administration is cool to the proposal.

"The question of a pause—whether it is around Christmas or any other time—comes down to where it leads," Bundy said. "And I may say that both in the 1966 pause and emphatically, subsequently, Hanoi has said that a pause with the implied or explicit liberty to resume on our part, is an ultimatum. They said so—or at least a very responsible friend of theirs said so—in those terms within a very few weeks. And there is no indication that a pause is really a contributory thing as to the way they look at it."

Bundy said he was not ruling out the Christmas truce but only saying that "there were very serious considerations that have to be taken into account if you're going to test it by the one test that makes any sense—whether it seriously offers a prospect of leading to peace."

Police Seize Detroit Man Who Held Five As Hostages

DETROIT (AP) — Police seized a 62-year-old man and sent him to a hospital Friday after he held officers at bay for 16 hours while threatening to kill four persons in his house on Detroit's West Side.

Eugene Ector, an auto plant worker, was grabbed by two patrolmen as he stepped out onto the porch of his two-story frame house to talk with a minister.

Throughout the night, while about 100 policemen ringed the house and diverted traffic, Ector fired occasional shots from a .38 Smith & Wesson and an M1 rifle.

The shots went into the walls and ceiling of the house. No one was harmed.

Police said they had not decided whether any charges would be filed against Ector, whose son, Herman, 30, was shot to death by a private guard during Detroit's July 23-30 riot. "We want to see how sick he is," said Chief Inspector Thomas Turkaly of the Detroit Police Department.

The episode began about 3:30 p.m. Monday, apparently as the result of a family quarrel.

Mrs. Alice Hicks, 37, who said she was Ector's common-law wife, attributed the incident to a misunderstanding between her and Ector.

"It was a personal matter," she said. "It got a little out of hand."

Mrs. Hicks, who was with Ector throughout most of the night, said he had threatened to kill her daughter, Joanne, 20; a son, William, 16, who is a deaf mute; another daughter, Bridgette, 5; and Joanne's son, Rodney, 2.

All five were with Ector Monday afternoon when he got the guns, locked the three padlocks on the house, and began firing the weapons.

Neighbors who heard the shots called police, who soon ringed the area with officers and routed traffic to other streets. They were armed with rifles and tear gas and wore armor vests.

As the hours passed, Ector's weapons barked sporadically. Police Inspector Eugene Zilkowski said Ector was trying to show "he meant business."

Later, Ector apparently dozed off, but police made no move to break into the house.

A retired policeman, William Watson, was one of a number of people who talked with Ector by telephone during the night, and he said the sight of the policemen upset Ector.

"He said they remind him of his son," Watson said.

Several of Ector's children came to the house, spoke with Ector, and left. Some of them came and went several times.

A daughter, Helene, 24, used a police bull horn to plead with her father.

About dawn Tuesday, the Rev. Alfunzo Campbell of the Ethiopian Orthodox Temple, arranged to meet with Ector. The patrolmen, dressed in business suits, accompanied the minister.

Ector unlocked his front door and stepped out. He carried neither of his weapons. The patrolmen grabbed him and other policemen rushed to the porch to help take Ector away. He was confined to a Detroit hospital for examination.

Unions Win Right to Lower Costs for Hiring Lawyers

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unions won the right in the Supreme Court Tuesday to lower legal costs for their members by hiring lawyers to represent them.

The arrangement, known as "group legal services," was given the court's blessing over the objection of a section of the organized bar in an 8-1 decision delivered by Justice Hugo L. Black.

Black traced the right of unions to hire lawyers to help union members assert "their legal rights" to the freedom of speech, assembly and petition guaranteed by the Constitution against federal or state interference.

"That the states have broad power to regulate the practice of law, is, of course, beyond question," Black wrote.

"But it is equally apparent that broad rules framed to protect the public and to preserve respect for the administration of justice can in their actual operation significantly impair the value of associational freedoms."

The ruling, one of three handed down by the Court, drew a stinging dissent from Justice John M. Harlan. He said it "cuts deeply into one of the most traditional state concerns, the maintenance of high standards within the state legal profession."

Black also spoke for the High Court as it held 8 to 0 that Florida, and by implication other states, cannot disqualify laid-off workers from unemployment benefits because they file unfair labor practice charges with the National Labor Relations Board.

"Congress has made it clear that it wishes all persons with information about such practices to be completely free from coercion against reporting them to the board," Black said.

The Florida Industrial Commission has barred payments to a Miami woman, Mrs. Minnie E. Nash, while her complaint against the Stanley Building Specialties Co., in Miami, was pending before the NLRB.

The board backed Mrs. Nash, 54, in seeking reversal. In the third ruling of the day a unanimous court directed a federal court in New York City to rule on the constitutionality of a New York State law that makes it a crime to distribute anonymous political literature.

The union lawyer case involved specifically employment of a lawyer by United Mine Workers district 12 to represent 15,000 union members in Illinois and Iowa in compensation cases.

Volcano Erupts, Forces Researchers to Flee

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — A volcano erupting unexpectedly from the depths of an ancient lake on the Antarctic island of Deception wrecked the scientific bases of three nations Tuesday and forced researchers to flee, Chilean officials reported.

Braving a rain of ashes and rocks, Chilean navy helicopters took 30 Chilean and eight British researchers and military personnel to the Chilean ship Piloto Pardo waiting off shore.

An Argentine group of 14 was to be taken off by the Argentine ship Bahia Aguirre, the Chilean navy said.

No volcanic eruption had been reported in more than 120 years on the island until geysers of boiling water from the lake began shooting up several days ago.

Then the volcano erupted in full fury Monday, sending ash and rock into the air and sending lava down ravines from the lake. A dense cloud of smoke shrouded the island and ashes blanketed the white ice caps.

The Interior Ministry said the British, Chilean and Argentine bases, hewn from the bitterly cold wastes, were wrecked by the volcano's force. The bases are used for weather and oceanographic research.

A Chilean navy spokesman said helicopters had to be used to bring off the Chileans and Britons because rough waters and the eruption of ashes and stones made it impossible to use boats.

"We shan't be returning to the island until we know it is completely safe," said a British spokesman.

"If we were to land the men again after a few months and there was another eruption, we couldn't get them off. The antarctic winter would have settled in and the area would be completely inaccessible."

The British expect to return home by way of the Falkland Islands. The Chileans also are expected to go home.

Carmichael Barred From Speaking

PARIS (AP) — French police barred Black Power advocate Stokely Carmichael from speaking at a rally Tuesday night, preventing him from speaking at a rally called to denounce the war in Vietnam, official sources said.

The sources reported that Carmichael, who was detained at Orly Airport, would be put aboard a plane Wednesday for any destination of his choice. He had arrived from Stockholm via Copenhagen.

Carmichael said in Stockholm he was returning to the United States. On his arrival, the State Department will pick up his passport for visiting Communist Cuba on a tour that included Africa as well as Europe.

Two More Steel Firms Up Prices Despite Plea

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Two more major steel companies upped prices Tuesday despite a plea for restraint from President Johnson, with one adding price boosts to even more product lines used in a wide range of consumer and industrial goods.

Robena Mine Will Close As Usual

CARMICHAELS, Pa. (AP) — Five years ago—at 1:15 p.m. on Dec. 6, 1962—the big fan atop the Frosty Run shaft of the Robena coal mine suddenly stopped.

For coal miners this was cause for concern. The fan was a vital part of the mine's ventilation system. It sucked out stale air and gases from the honeycomb of tunnels hundreds of feet beneath the surface and drew in a fresh supply of air for the men working 650 feet underground.

The fan soon re-started, but 10 minutes later it stopped again. Miners and supervisors, checking for trouble below ground soon realized that something was wrong—very wrong. Smoke and small fires could be seen in one section of the mine. And there was no word from the 37 men who had been working in that area.

It now became obvious that a big explosion had occurred in the mine—an explosion so terrific that a miner later described it as "like standing in the barrel of a shotgun when it goes off."

Forty-four other miners working another part of the mine, were hustled to the surface. For the next five days and nights, crews of rescue workers went about the grim task of searching the shattered area of the mine for survivors. Their task proved hopeless—all 37 men had died in the explosion.

The precise cause of the blast was never determined. Investigators concluded that it was touched off by a spark that ignited a methane gas.

This Thursday, the Robena mine near this Greene County town will be shut down, just as it has been every Dec. 6 since the explosion. There's no written agreement between the United Mine Workers and the mine owner, U.S. Steel, to close the pit.

Armco Steel Corp., the sixth-ranked producer, and No. 3 Republic Steel followed the lead of top-ranked U.S. Steel and No. 2 Bethlehem in announcing $5-a-ton increases on cold-rolled sheets.

Armco also boosted prices $5 a ton on hot-rolled sheets and $4 a ton on galvanized sheet and strip steels.

If other producers follow Armco's increases in these product areas, the industry will have raised prices product-by-product this year on 80 per cent of shipments, or the equivalent of a general increase.

There was no immediate comment from Washington.

The latest price increases affect products such as cars, appliances, storage tanks, industrial machinery and garbage cans.

Industry profits in the first nine months of the year nose-dived 31 per cent from 1966.

Strip steel is converted from cold-rolled sheets, which are made from hot-rolled. The three products are considered the bread and butter of the industry. They account for 38 per cent of annual shipments.

Coupled with price increases since January covering 45 per cent of shipments, it would mean the industry has raised prices on nearly 80 per cent of output.

The industry discarded sweeping general increases in favor of product-by-product adjustments after President Kennedy rolled back a general increase in 1962.

Bethlehem said it was studying Armco's increase. U.S. Steel had no comment. But if the additional increases stick, both firms would have to go along to remain competitive.

Gardner Ackley, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, had criticized U.S. Steel's increase and urged other producers to hold the line.

Canadian steel producers will not increase their prices, a spokesman said. But in Japan, the world's third-ranked steel-making nation, producers said they may also increase the price on cold-rolled sheets after further study.

Transplanted Heart Seems To Be Functioning Very Well

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Hospital tests Tuesday showed the heart transplanted to Louis Washkansky is functioning well, the surgeon who performed the historic operation reported.

The 55-year-old Cape Town businessman had his first solid food since the operation three days ago, a soft-boiled egg for breakfast. He told attendants he was hungry. For lunch he had soup.

Prof. Christian Barnard, 44, the surgeon who performed the operation, told reporters Washkansky is being kept in an oxygen tent, but only to keep him isolated. He said the oxygen was not needed.

Dr. S. C. W. Bosman, heart surgeon at the Groote Schuur Hospital said Washkansky's condition "is very satisfactory" and "all is going as well as any open heart operation can be."

Medical experts say the critical period will begin about Sunday when there may be some indications whether Washkansky's body will reject the new heart. Barnard said drugs are being administered to suppress possible rejection.

The heart of Denise Ann Davall, 25, an accounting machine operator killed by an automobile Saturday, was implanted to replace Washkansky's diseased organ in the first operation of its kind.

Barnard said "an easier case," such as a child, could have been chosen but Washkansky's ailment was critical. A child could reasonably be expected to live much longer with a bad heart, while the life expectancy of Washkansky had to be measured in terms "of days, or at the most weeks," Barnard explained.

Barnard said he did not set out to make medical history but was only trying to help a critically ill patient.

He stressed that the operation was "completely new surgery with a whole lot of unanswered questions. Even if the patient was lost a lot had been achieved and learned."

A Cape Town druggist may be the next receiver of a transplanted heart, but Barnard said a second transplant was weeks away. His 30-member team has to continue a minute by minute check on Washkansky, Barnard said, and we're weary.

Medical specialists are taking readings of Washkansky's pulse and blood pressure every 15 minutes. Every four hours sodium potassium and chloride content of his blood is tested. Periodic urine tests tell whether circulation is good.

Besides heart trouble, Washkansky suffers from diabetes. Washkansky's chances of survival will probably be affected by his diabetes, said Dr. H. M. C. Botha, who was responsible for the matching of the tissues in the transplant operation.

Transit Group Discusses New Bus Garage Site

JAMESTOWN, N.Y. — The future site of Jamestown's new bus garage highlighted yesterday's afternoon meeting of the Municipal Transit Commission. Councilman Robert E. Godfrey, and Urban Renewal Director Alfred G. Ford presented a committee report suggesting two possibilities.

One of the proposed sites would be on Jones and Gifford ave., the same site recommended by the city's planning consultant, A. Russell Tryon, in his recently-released master plan for the city. Godfrey told the commission his committee was also recommending a Clinton st. location as a second possibility.

The Transit Commission began looking last month for a site on which to build a new terminal building as an alternative to remodeling the present W. Third st. facilities.

Original plans, drawn up by the Jamestown architectural firm of Beck, Tinkham, and Beyer, called for the renovation of the existing bus garage, but had to be shelved when the bids for the remodeling greatly exceeded the architect's estimate. At yesterday's meeting, the architects submitted their bill for $15,328.

Bridge Collapses; 20 Thought Buried

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Rescue workers probed gingerly in the wreckage of a collapsed bridge Tuesday in search of the bodies of 20 men believed buried below. Officials expressed fears of a new collapse.

The center span of the bridge, which was under construction, fell 300 feet into a canyon Monday.

Estimates of the number trapped ranged from 30 to 70. Ten bodies were recovered.

An official of the Public Works Ministry estimated more than 30 men died. Some workers at the scene gave higher estimates.

Most of the workers were in the canyon when the span broke into its death-dealing cascade. One worker atop the bridge, Angel Gutierrez Carroga, jumped into a tree on the canyon face. He was hospitalized with critical injuries.

Cause of the collapse was not immediately determined.

Construction of the bridge, which was about 300 yards long, is under supervision of a private Mexican firm.

Jointly Built Missile Fails

PARIS (AP) — A test launching of a jointly built European missile failed Tuesday night when the French-built second stage misfired at the Woomera, Australia, test site, the European Launcher Development Organization (ELDO) announced.

The rocket's first stage, the British-built Blue Streak, ignited and lifted off perfectly, ELDO said.

Similar difficulties bothered the F6-1, the first experimental vehicle, tested at Woomera last August. Then, too, the French Coralie rocket malfunctioned. This was the seventh straight firing for the Blue Streak with no trouble.

Europa 1, the first European launcher, is scheduled to be fired next year as a prelude for a European rocket capable of placing a communications satellite in orbit.

Senate-House Conferees Agree on Meat Inspection

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON — Consumers won a victory Tuesday as Senate and House conferees agreed on a meat inspection bill that will extend federal standards to all meat packing and processing plants.

Passage of the measure by the House and Senate, possibly Wednesday, appeared assured. This would enable President Johnson to sign it into law before the week is out. The meat inspection measure is a part of the consumer legislation that he has called on Congress to adopt.

President Johnson immediately hailed the "strong meat inspection bill."

"This bill," he said in a White House statement, "will help guarantee to every American family that the meat on their table and in their stores and supermarkets will be safe and fit for human consumption."

"As early as 1964," he added, "I urged an airtight meat inspection bill and the one passed today is a significant step forward and another victory for the American consumer."

The bill cleared for final congressional action is essentially the measure passed by the Senate last week by a vote of 89 to 2. It is more stringent than a House-passed bill.

It stemmed from disclosures over the years of unsanitary conditions and adulterated meat in some of the 15,000 plants that sell products wholly within state borders and thus outside federal jurisdiction. These plants produce annually about 9 million pounds, or 15 per cent of all slaughtered meat and 25 per cent of processed meat.

The bill authorizes matching federal grants to states to enable them to make their state inspection systems for intrastate plants "at least equal" to federal standards.

This was a key provision of the House bill. However, the House measure failed to match the Senate version in setting a time limit for the states to act or face federal intervention. Nor did the House bill grant the Secretary of Agriculture broad power to move against intrastate plants, as did the Senate measure.

The bill gives a state two years to revise its systems to federal standards and possibly a third year if the Secretary of Agriculture finds that it is making progress. If a state failed to act, the Secretary would step in and impose federal inspection.

Imported meats are also subject to more stringent regulations. Rather than "substantial" compliance with United States regulations, imported meats are made subject to the test of "equal to" federal standards.

The American Meat Institute, which includes the major American packers, supported the Senate bill.

Problems of the Aged

Concern for the aged has inspired a lot of breast beating among local politicians over the past few years and the subject certainly hasn't been neglected by those at state and federal levels. Far more time and effort has been expended by the handshakers in trying to come up with a give-away plan that will top any of the previous offers made than has been devoted to creating opportunities for these aged citizens to be productive and socially independent.

The "give-away" is the gimmick in our modern society. But for the aged it is far from being the solution to their problems, for social dependency is a crushing blow to human dignity at a time when physical infirmities constantly remind the individual that the useful days of his life are limited.

For we must remember that society has placed high values on physical labor and income-earning abilities, values that cannot be suddenly cast aside simply because a person has survived to a predetermined age. Nor does age alone prepare the individual for the psychological rejection that is a part of total retirement.

The problems of the aged are particularly pressing in a semi-rural environment such as we have in Warren County. The number of aged persons not only exceeds national ratio levels, but the chances of the aged associating with each other is lessened because of the distances usually involved. Many are forced to face a bleak future in comparative solitude.

The "give-away" is not the answer to the problems of these people if it tends to isolate them from our society or make them dependent on the community for their total existence. There has to be a better way — and that better way must make it possible for these aged persons to escape the psychological problems of old age as well as the financial ones.

Sociologists dealing with rural residents in other parts of the country have determined that light agriculture pursuits and recreation-based businesses provide the best means of doing this. That these activities, while usually not outstandingly profitable, supplement social security payments and provide psychological relief. And further, that the person so engaged is less likely to suffer from physical ailments so common to the inactive aged.

If we accept this precept, our course is clear. We must encourage our oldsters to stay active by becoming a part of the recreational development of the county or producers of some of the food products our expanding population will need. Opportunities exist in both fields. What we really need now is programs that will help them help themselves.

Kennedy's Chances Slim

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON — Time, luck and accident are all critical factors in presidential politics, and all three seem to be running these days against Sen. Robert Kennedy of New York.

He is now 42, precisely the age when his brother John announced for the presidency, but Robert Kennedy, who would like to do the same thing, is now confronted with a difficult dilemma as ever faced a promising candidate.

On the one hand, the temptation to challenge President Johnson is very strong. He not only differs with the administration on the war and on the priorities and appropriations for the cities, but sees ahead five more years of division in the country if Johnson wins next November.

On the other hand, if he challenges Johnson, the odds are that he would lose to the president in the nominating convention, and even if he won, he would split the Democratic party and might lose to the Republican nominee in the national election.

All this is fairly obvious. What is not so obvious is that he feels so deeply about the present divisions in the country that it is a matter of conscience with him to think about trying to remove those divisions, but the more he studies the political realities, the more he fears that in trying to remove the divisions, he might only create more divisions — and lose besides.

Sen. Eugene McCarthy has complicated Kennedy's problem. McCarthy is not really a pacemaker for Kennedy but a barrier. There are some presidential primary elections where Kennedy could have allowed his name to be placed before the state voters — New Hampshire, for example. There are others, like Massachusetts and Florida, where the state committee or the state chairman could put up his name without his consent. Also, in states such as Nebraska, Oregon, and Wisconsin, Kennedy would have to sign an affidavit saying he would never be a candidate in this election in order to get his name off the ballot.

It was at least possible — and the possibilities definitely were canvassed by Kennedy's supporters — that Kennedy could have demonstrated in these primaries that he was far stronger with the voters than Johnson, but with McCarthy in the race, the anti-Johnson vote would be split to the detriment of both Kennedy and McCarthy, and to the advantage of the president. This, one gathers, is not what Kennedy and McCarthy have in mind.

Accordingly, unless the president's support or health should collapse, Kennedy is trapped. It is wholly wrong to think there is some kind of deal or understanding between Kennedy and McCarthy. They have never been close personally, and while McCarthy did go and talk to Kennedy before announcing his candidacy, the conversation lasted only ten minutes and was not really a serious discussion of the problem, but mainly a courtesy call in which McCarthy told Kennedy what he proposed to do.

The University 'Lobby'

HARRISBURG — It's seemingly somewhat of a far-out gasp but administration leaders apparently are counting on the heads of Pennsylvania's heavily state-aided universities to turn into pumpkins, or pressure lobbyists, before lawmakers return next week.

The word is that the three prime state-aided institutions of higher learning — University of Pennsylvania, University of Pittsburgh and Penn State University — are expected to knock together legislative heads during the current week's recess in the hope of forcing lawmakers into clearing their long halted appropriations.

This is rather amusing to many a lawmaker who just can't visualize any of the university chiefs really getting tough about it — that is, insofar as thumping legislative noggins together is concerned. "I can just see Doctor Walker (Eric Walker, President of Penn State) really trying to put the pressure bite on any lawmaker," growled one member of the House of Representatives in obvious irritation at the prospect.

What he meant makes some sense; this was the way he expressed it.

In the first place, the heads of the three universities meet directly concerned are educators, not lobbyists, and as such have more to worry and fret over than the business of lobbying — or at least they should.

Secondly, it is not up to the heads of these institutions to say what each will receive in the form of state aid; they can (and do) recommend and suggest what they feel they should have — and technically that's where it ends insofar as they are concerned.

After this the Governor pares down the recommendations (if he deems this advisable (as is usually the case) and thereafter it's up to the Legislature. This last step is where the matter stands, now, as lawmakers mince and fiddle over what to do about Governor Shafer's request for $300 million in new monies to run the state during the now nearly half over fiscal year.

The tax increase issue still hasn't been resolved, and as the non-solution drags on and on, so do the projected appropriations for the major state-aided universities — nearly $12 million in the case of Penn, some $28 million in the case of Pitt, and around $48 million for Penn State.

The university heads have several choices open to them. They can borrow against the time (at some future date) when the appropriations will be finally cleared for them — as has already been done — which however entails costly interest rates on the loans; interest payments for which the universities had not originally budgeted.

They can raise tuition charges to make up for the deficiency, which has already been threatened, or they can curtail expenditures in the interim which could mean cutting out this or that program, lopping off faculty, etc.

These of course are the more drastic possibilities but the question arises on the latter two points as to whether such moves would be justified. Perhaps the best way to answer this is that after all, the heads of the institutions of higher learning do not decree what shall and shall not be given them in the form of state aid; it's a matter strictly for the Legislature to decide — with the operation of the university concerned, in varying degree, dictated by the legislative grant.

Technically the heads of these collegiate institutions would be justified in simply sitting back and saying to lawmakers: "Very well, if this is the kind of system of higher education you want in this state, so be it."

With that, up would go tuition, programs would be curtailed — and the howl would be deafening. It could happen if the state mate continues much longer. And when you come right down to it, their business is running their educational institutions (for which they are hired) — not engaging in strategy lobbying, as some feel they should be doing this week!

Failure Itself Is Success

There is enormous success in failure. Ten years ago, the research chemists at Cyanamid Chemical in Stamford, Conn., were hunting for a rubber additive and they ran down the formulas like gamblers looking for a fifth ace in a new deck.

The success in failure is two fold: (1) You note the test so that no one ever has to repeat it; (2) You may find something better than you were looking for.

The quiet men in the white coats were looking for something that would make rubber more durable. They didn't find it. The tests were passed on to Lederle Laboratories, a medical drug firm at Pearl River, New York. Lederle is a subsidiary of Cyanamid, and tests that fall in one laboratory are passed on to the other.

Lederle works in teams. The long lists of rubber tests went to Dr. John Thomas. He and Richard Bonin had been prowling for anti-microbial agents — substances that will kill vicious germs, but not friendly ones and not the patient. So they studied the rubber additive tests with less than casual interest, and wondered why they had to experiment with specks of petroleum and acetone. For what?

Still an assignment is an assignment. Besides, almost everything of value to man is found in the most unlikely places. One old man at Lederle wanted to quit because he had been running thousands of tests over two years and had discovered nothing.

Dr. Thomas and Mr. Bonin began to test oil and acetone, in varying portions, on mice. They didn't know whether a certain formula might cure cancer or arthritis or tuberculosis or leprosy or emphysema, nephritis, hepatitis, falling arches or nothing at all. It might even kill the nervous little rodents.

A proper and exhaustive run-down entails hundreds, sometimes thousands of tests. Thomas was surprised on test formula 66, to note that mice dying of tuberculosis were becoming frisky. The compound consisted of ethylene-dianamin and was called CL-27915. It had been tried before and had produced nothing. Dr. Earl Dearborn, in charge of the Thomas-Bonin team, began to show enthusiasm.

He called in Dr. Franklin M. Phillips, who, at the age of 48, is director of clinical investigation at Lederle, the CIA of microbe control-intelligence. Phillips found that the formula had already been tested for fungus, bacteria, virus, parasites, diabetes, hyper-tension and tranquilizing the human nervous system, which is quite a list for something that emerged from rubber tests as a flat tire.

The fluid was injected into tubercular mice and they grew stronger. With the compound, they also developed a kidney malfunction. Phillips felt that the formula could be refined in several ways, any one of which might kill certain bacilli without "side effects."

Two years later, they were still trying. Over 9,000 compounds had been screened. CL-36892 was a winner. It apparently cured certain strains of tuberculosis quickly and dramatically, with minor side effects, including diffusion of vision. The compound was compared to anti-tubercular drugs already on the market, isoniazid, streptomycin, PAS.

At once, a great discovery was made. CL-36892 was valuable, but when used with the other drugs, its work bordered on the miraculous. Some human volunteers, who had had T.B. for years, had negative sputum tests within 24 hours. Molecular balls and rods were built to simulate the new drug, which was dubbed "Myambutol," and secondary teams of researchers worked to synthesize it.

In July, 1961, Lederle made tests on 2,900 tubercular patients. None had ever been treated before. All had plenty of the red rods of tuberculosis in their lungs. Of those with minimal disease, 98 per cent were improved; those called moderate cases showed 96 per cent recovery; the "far advanced" got a 91 per cent report card.

A month ago, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration approved Myambutol for public use. The white scourge still adds 50,000 new victims a year in the United States alone. The new combination will go on sale this Friday. It may cut the toll to reasonable limits.

Somewhere in Stamford, a martinet is shrieking: "Okay, Charlie. How about taking the lead out and looking for that rubber additive?"

Stokely and Sedition

WASHINGTON — An important, undisclosed policy disagreement over Stokely Carmichael has developed between President Johnson and Attorney General Ramsey Clark. Carmichael, the roofer, toothin' advocate of black power, is reported about to sneak back into the United States. This poses the question: Should he be prosecuted for sedition?

Born in the West Indies, Carmichael came to the United States to obtain a college education and American citizenship, recently has been castigating the United States from the safety of various communist capitals throughout the world.

In Cuba, while wine and dined by Fidel Castro, he called upon Negroes to rise up in revolt against the United States. Then he went to Hanoi, carried favor with Ho Chi Minh, again denounced the adopted country which had educated and befriended him.

More recently he turned up in Denmark, where he attended the mock trial of the United States for war crimes. Carmichael had bought an airline ticket in Tanzania, permitting stops in Rome and Paris, but didn't linger in either place. He went direct to Scandinavia to make a speech at Uppsala University in Stockholm.

SNCC headquarters in Atlanta is now expecting him to return. The report is that he'll try to sneak into the United States via Canada unannounced.

If and when this happens, the Justice Department will be faced with the question of whether to prosecute.

Carmichael appears to have clearly violated the 1917 Sedition Act, and President Johnson has argued that his prosecution would put other militants on notice that there is a limit to treasonous activities against the USA.

However, Attorney General Clark believes this would only make a martyr of Carmichael. A great majority of American Negroes are fed up with Carmichael's grandstanding, and Clark believes he will kill himself if he continues his seditious activity.

Note-Clark is the son of retired Associate Justice Tom Clark of the Supreme Court, who also served as Attorney General and came to Washington from Texas as a young Justice Department lawyer at the same time Lyndon Johnson came from Texas as a young Congressman.

PROTECTING CONSUMERS
President Johnson, who has done a better job of protecting the consumer than any President since Woodrow Wilson, should keep an eye on a significant move inside the Federal Trade Commission. This is the commission established by Wilson to protect the consumer.

Chairman Rand Dixon is now trying to promote his general counsel, James Henderson, to be commissioner, replacing John Reilly, who is retiring. Dixon's supposed ace-in-the-hole in promoting Henderson is that he is a Texan, which should appeal to the Texan in the White House.

However, Henderson is a Texan who doesn't follow the militant consumer protection policies of the Texan in the White House. He is a good lawyer but a frequent user of the Federal Bar Club and sleeps intermittently and conspicuously in Trade Commission meetings.

Some time ago, Chairman Warren Magnuson of the Senate Commerce Committee requested the FTC to make a study of mail-order insurance swindles. There are serious swindles which prey on servicemen, oldsters and poor people. After waiting a month, Magnuson received from the commission a 30-page, rather sketchy, mimeographed report. Henderson was blamed for the delay and sketchiness.

Chairman Dixon, trained by the late Sen. Estes Kefauver as a militant trust-buster, has now become complacent as the years pass. So has Commissioner Everett MacIntyre, who trained under trust-busting Rep. Wright Patman of Texas.

As a result, the real consumer protectors on the FTC have become Commissioners Mary Jones, Philip Elman, and Reilly. If Dixon promotes his pal Henderson to be a commissioner, it will mean that the consumer-protecting militants will be in a minority; the complacents will control.

Meanwhile, President Johnson, anything but complacent, is continuing to prod the lethargic 90th Congress to pass consumer-protection legislation. Out of 12 bills aimed at consumer protection, only one, creating a product safety commission, has passed.

HUNGRY PEOPLE
A tough foe of the Great Society, Rep. Albert H. Quie, R-Minn., has come to the rescue of a Mississippi-sponsored move to help the hungry.

When Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., introduced a bill to provide $25 million to feed starving people, Southern colleagues on the House Agriculture Committee held secret hearings and promptly sidetracked it. Whereupon Quie went to bat singlehandedly.

"The Agriculture Committee agreed to a six-month study of the problem, but it seemed to me that hungry people couldn't wait six months to be fed," he told this column.

Dollar Devaluation?

In dismissing the possibility of a devaluation of the dollar, the favorite word of most commentators I have read is "unthinkable." In discussing the threat in private, the favorite word of most experts I have heard is "catastrophic."

But in view of the rush around the world to convert dollars into gold following the British devaluation of the pound Nov. 18 and in view of the vindictive attack on the dollar launched by French president de Gaulle last week, a sound attitude, I suggest, might be to "think the unthinkable" so we know what we are trying to avoid and appraise the "catastrophic" so we can mobilize the weapons to avert it." Thus, herewith an analysis.

Q. WHAT COULD DEVALUATION MEAN AT THE START?
A. Probably very little that you would notice — and the reason is that if we doubled the price at which we buy and sell gold to $70 an ounce and thus devalued the dollar in terms of gold in half, other nations would follow us within minutes and similarly devalue their currencies against the dollar.

As a result, we all would be right back where we were. Only the price of gold would have been significantly changed.

Of course, the shock of a devaluation of the dollar — the pivot of the world's monetary system — might send stock prices into a tailspin because stockholders would be terrified about the depression which might come next. But the shock also could send stock prices whirling upward because investors would be anticipating a runaway inflation later. This aspect is wild guesswork.

There could be a national paralysis built on fear and befuddlement but again it's futile to try to translate this into specific immediate price changes. As for the appearance of the dollar in your pocket, it wouldn't change a bit.

Q. WHAT WOULD DEVALUATION MEAN OVER THE LONG-TERM?
A. Here we get to the heart of the matter and to the reason for such words as "unthinkable" and "catastrophic."

First, you must understand that the dollar is the one great reserve currency of the world. Our paper money is trusted as a supplement to gold in the reserves of nations. It is used as a medium for settlement of debts between nations. It finances an enormous portion of the trade of the world.

Second, you must understand that there has been and is a shortage of gold to finance trade. The whole world's holdings of monetary gold came to only $42 billion, a fraction of what is needed to support a vast and growing international trade. Of this total, 64 per cent or $27.3 billion is held by seven nations alone (our holdings come to $12 billion-plus).

Now against this background, consider the impact of an overnight 50 per cent slash in the dollar's value in gold terms. Not only might the blow of a 50 per cent slash in the value of their dollar assets bring activity to a standstill in many nations. It surely also would make them unwilling to continue accepting the dollar as a reserve.

The world monetary system which was created at Bretton Woods in 1944 and which has worked so magnificently in fueling world trade prosperity since then would be dead. The world would be left with no key currency for use as a supplement to gold in international trade.

The result would be a contraction of trade and fantastic trade distortions as nations went back to gold alone. The result would be depression leaping from nation to nation.

The result in a matter of months, if not weeks, would be bankruptcies, massive joblessness, social — economic chaos, a retreat to the financial barbarism which preceded World War II.

Tomorrow: What should we do to avert this?

Montana's Political Outlook

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
MISSOULA, Mont. — It is not easy to reach this isolated university town in the snow-covered hills of western Montana, and once here the political cares of Washington and the east seem far away. But they press in, nevertheless, and the state's politicians are already trying to anticipate their impact.

A pretty good cross-section of Montana's liberal Democrats, for instance, gathered here over the weekend for their 24th annual farm-labor institute and most of them gingerly agreed that next year they just might elect a Democratic governor for the first time since 1952.

But no one was willing to brag. "We'll have to run entirely on state issues," warned Eugene Mahoney, the Democratic floor leader of the state senate and a good bet for the gubernatorial nomination. "There aren't going to be any coattails to ride."

Electing a governor next year is going to be serious business in this sprawling mining, timber and cattle empire that spreads all the way across the mountain time zone (Montana is so big that Jim Murray, the political director of the state A.F.L.-C.I.O., estimates that in the 1966 campaign he wore out a set of tires every eight weeks).

It is not just that Mike Mansfield and Lee Metcalf, the two Democratic senators, are not up for re-election in 1968. The political fact is that the big interests here — the Montana Power Company, for instance, and the great copper mining concerns — concentrate on electing governors, with their power to make appointments and influence the legislature.

This policy has helped keep liberals and Democrats out of the state house of Helena for 16 long years, and as a result the proudest boast of the farmer and labor alliance that met here was not about what it had accomplished but what it had prevented.

"If it weren't for us, Montana would have a right-to-work law and a state sales tax," said Tom Ryan, the secretary of the farmers' union. "But now it's time we got in and did something positive."

Ryan and other liberal Democrats think that Republican Gov. Tim Babcock, now completing a second term, is in serious trouble. Babcock did not help his re-election prospects by running for the senate and losing to Lee Metcalf in 1966; he is still promoting the unpopular sales tax idea; he is accused of absenteeism beyond the call of duty, and the Democrats, at least, believe the public now considers him "Montana Power's man."

For all these reasons, Babcock may face a primary challenge from the more liberal Republican lieutenant-governor, Ted James; and one of them is surely going to have a hard race against Gene Mahoney, or perhaps Democratic Attorney General Forrest Anderson.

The trouble, as many of the liberal Democrats meeting here are well aware, is that the weaknesses of President Johnson and the national Democrats cannot be hidden in Montana.

For one thing, Johnson is as unpopular here as he seems to be elsewhere — not least because farm income is down — and since Montana often goes Republican in national elections, it is unlikely that he can carry the state next year. Whether his name on the ballot will drag down the state Democratic ticket remains to be seen, but the liberals meeting here obviously are not eager to get any closer to the president than protocol will demand.

Even more ambiguous is the impact of various Democratic splinter movements caused by the war in Vietnam. Only one or two hand-printed "McCarthy for President" lapel cards were visible here, but an anti-war, anti-Johnson organization of "Dissident Democrats" have been formed, with a live base at the University of Montana. Some orthodox liberals are worried that groups like this will link the Democratic party with a "way-out" brand of radicalism and pacifism that will repel a basically conservative electorate.

Moreover, if such groups insist that state Democratic candidates repudiate the president and the administration on the war issue, the Montana party might be split badly enough to lose the governorship again. It will be hard enough to win in any case, without having the war dragged in on Lyndon Johnson's coattails.

Heart Transplant Dramatizes Problem: Shortage of Organs

(c) N.Y. Times News Service
WASHINGTON — The initial success of the heart transplantation in Capetown dramatizes something that is already a cause of concern to many doctors.

It is difficult to get enough human organs for transplantation. And the shortage is almost certain to get worse.

At present, the kidney is the only human vital organ for which there is appreciable demand but, in the future the liver, the lungs and—most important of all—the heart may well be added to the list. Growing demand is also expected for other organs and tissues less vital to life.

Some specialists in transplantation research are already trying to educate the general public on the usefulness of making their bodies available, after death, for organ donation.

There are legal as well as psychological and logistics problems to be overcome. At present, New York is one of about 20 states that have laws giving a person the right to donate his body or any of its major organs for transplantation use after death.

In some other states, where such a law does not exist, doctors face a life and death race with time to get permission from next of kin to use an organ while it is still in good enough condition to be used and while the patient for whom it is needed still lives.

An organ, such as a kidney, heart or liver, must be used within a few hours of the death of its original owner.

The vast majority of experience with patients so far has been in the field of kidney transplantation. The first success was achieved 13 years ago. About 1,500 cases have been completed throughout the world. While many of these have failed, the rate of success has

Arbitration Proposal Rejected

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP) — A proposal for binding arbitration to settle a teachers' strike that has closed Scranton's public schools was rejected Tuesday.

Most of the city's 800 teachers struck the school system Friday, meaning an unexpected holiday for 16,000 pupils in its 41 schools.

In negotiating sessions Tuesday, the Scranton branch of the Pennsylvania State Education Association proposed submitting the issues to binding arbitration.

James A. Kelly, a lawyer who heads the bargaining team for the school, rejected the proposal because of opposition, he said, from another teacher bargaining unit, the Scranton Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO.

Both teacher groups reportedly modified their salary demands during Tuesday's sessions. The Scranton Federation of Teachers, which had been seeking a $1,500 yearly raise, said it would settle for $1,100.

The Pennsylvania State Education Association still held to its demand for $1,300 this year, but said it would take the increase in two installments — $900 Jan. 1 and an additional $400 April 1.

The school board has offered a $800 increase this year and $500 next year.

Present teacher yearly scales range from $5,000 to $8,000.

Regarding the arbitration issue raised Tuesday, Kelly said the board had urged last Thursday that the issues be submitted to a panel. The teacher groups rejected the idea because the panel's recommendations would not be binding. Kelly said that when it was proposed to make the panel's findings binding, the unions still rejected the proposal.

Council Schedules Roundtable Meets

The Chief Cornplanter Council will hold its December Roundtable Meeting at the First Methodist Church, Second & Market st., on Thursday, December 7, at 7:30 p.m.

The Cub Scout Roundtable will feature program ideas, projects and crafts, presented by Mrs. Evelyn Smith and Mr. Arnold Allen, Cub Scout Roundtable Commissioner. The Cub Scout theme for January is Communications.

The Boy Scout Roundtable will highlight different types of ceremonies for the presentation of awards at troop ceremonies. Also the complete role of the Scoutmaster in regards to advancement will be reviewed. The requirements for the Personal Fitness Merit Badge will be reviewed and ideas exchanged concerning the most effective use of this merit badge.

The Julian calendar, named after Julius Caesar, is still the calendar of the Eastern Orthodox churches.

been improving as doctors have learned how to control the body's natural tendency to react against and destroy foreign tissue.

This rejection is the central problem of all organ transplan-tation attempts and it applies to the heart, liver and the lungs as it does to the kidney. The growing success with the kidney has encouraged surgeons to try transplantation with other organs as well.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Even as monsoon clouds cloak Hanoi, the Pentagon is lining up the bombs and other materiel for what may be another spring escalation of air attacks against North Vietnam.

Beginning about March, spring winds sweep away the rain clouds over North Vietnamese territory, opening the skies to U.S. planes hampered in the winter by bad visibility.

A random check of military purchases during the last few days of November showed the Navy and Air Force ordering nearly $40 million in bomb components, electronic gear and missiles to knock out enemy aircraft batteries.

It takes about six months from the time bombs are ordered to have them on the planes in Southeast Asia.

On Friday the Defense Supply Agency awarded $292 million in contracts for 2.7 billion gallons of jet fuel to be delivered over the next few months. Last May's semiannual purchase was $50 million less.

And both the Navy and Air

Force are quadrupling their purchases of "countermeasure chaff"—tinsel-like strings exploded in puffs by U.S. pilots to create deceptive blips on North Vietnamese radar screens.

Although some war critics argue a halt to the bombing is the key to possible peace negotiations with North Vietnam, the administration has given no indication the attacks will be halted for any extended period unless Hanoi offers some reciprocal de-escalation.

The State Department has, however, left the door open to possible brief bombing cessations around Christmas and the turn of the year.

Dr. Spock and Poet Ginsberg Arrested During Pre-Dawn Demonstrations

(c) N. Y. Times News Service
NEW YORK—Police arrested 264 persons, including Dr. Benjamin Spock and Poet Allen Ginsberg, Tuesday during a pre-dawn demonstration by more than 2,500 antiwar, antiwar protesters at the Armed Forces induction center in Whitehall Street, downtown Manhattan.

The mass arrests, anticipated by both the demonstrators and the police, evoked the only turbulent moments in a generally orderly demonstration. But police were alerted for a livelier protest Wednesday when a coalition of more than 40 antiwar groups plans to surround the induction center with 5,000 demonstrators who have been instructed to paralyze traffic in the area, and to attempt to intercept inductees and persuade them to join the protest. Tuesday's seizure failed to disrupt either the induction center or the neighboring tip of the financial district. The ranks of demonstrators thinned before the morning rush hour. Leaders said they had no intention of trying to force a halt in the induction process but they merely wanted a "symbolic" protest. But Wednesday, they said, would be different. The police massed more than 2,500 men Tuesday to protect the induction center, a faded nine-story red brick building, with barricades so formidable that Spock had to plead for an opening so that he could sit on the entrance steps and be arrested. Among those arrested was Dr. Connor Cruise O'Brien, Albert Schweitzer Professor of Humanities at New York University. Mrs. Maire O'Brien who was also arrested told newsmen that mounted police drove their horses into the sitting group and her husband was assaulted by police who followed on foot. There were a few other charges of police brutality. Mayor John V. Lindsay told a City Hall news conference that he had received a full report on the demonstration and believed it was "handled very well by the police." All of the 264 persons arrested—there were 171 men and 93 women—were paroled when arraigned in criminal court on charges of disorderly conduct.

2 Fires Reported: Damages Total $325

Property damage resulting from two fires Tuesday totaled $325, according to officials at Warren Borough Fire Department.

An alarm at 10:46 a.m. sent firemen to the home of R.E. Forsgren, 108 Quaker Hill road, where, according to officials, a furnace motor burned out causing an estimated $25 damage.

Nine men responded to the alarm, officials said. They were on the scene approximately 34 minutes.

A second alarm at 3:55 p.m. sent firemen to Struthers Wells Inc., where rubbish burning in the back of a truck caused an estimated $300 damage, according to firemen. The blaze confined to the truck valued at $12,000, firemen said, was extinguished with a booster line. The department was on the scene for 33 minutes, with 12 men responding to the alarm.

It's Time To Make Fruitcake

If you are looking for a fruit cake that is neither overly sweet nor heavily spiced, this recipe is definitely for you. Its simple batter holds nuggets of pineapple, pecans and golden raisins. Given sprinklings of brandy or rum, it takes on spirited flavor.

You'll find explicit directions for storing, decorating and glazing the cake are given with the recipe.

PINEAPPLE PECAN CAKE
1½ cups sifted regular flour
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg
½ cup (¼ pound) butter or margarine
¼ cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
4 eggs
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
2 cups chopped candied pineapple
2 cups coarsely broken pecans
1 cup chopped golden raisins
Grease 2 loaf pans (each 7½ by 3½ by 2¼ inches), or use 1 loaf pan and 8 to 10 small muffin-pan cups (each 1¼ by 1 inch). Line bottoms of loaf pans with brown paper; grease paper. If muffin-pan cups are used, place a small paper baking cup in each.

On wax paper sift together the flour, salt, cinnamon and nutmeg; set aside ¼ cup of the mixture.

In a large mixing bowl, cream the butter and sugar. Thoroughly beat in eggs, one at a time. Add lemon rind. Stir in 1¼ cups of the flour mixture just until smooth. Toss reserved ¼ cup of flour mixture with pineapple and pecans; stir into batter. Turn into prepared pans.

Bake in a 275-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean — about 1 hour and 45 minutes for loaf pans and 45 minutes for muffin pans. Remove to wire cooling rack; let stand in pans about 15 minutes. Remove from pans to wire rack; turn right side up; brown paper may be removed; baking cups should not be removed. Cool.

STORAGE: Brandy or light rum are appropriate for sprinkling on Pineapple Pecan Cakes before wrapping for storage. Lightly sprinkle surface of cake with the spirits, then wrap tightly in transparent plastic wrapping. Wrap again in foil, sealing tightly, and store in refrigerator. The cakes should be stored for two or three weeks for the flavors to blend; each week they may be given a sprinkling of the spirits. Properly stored and aged cakes may be cut into beautifully thin, even slices.

DECORATING: Several days after the cake has had its final addition of spirits, brush it with warmed corn syrup and arrange pecans and pieces of candied pineapple on top in a decorative pattern. Rewrap and refrigerate.

FINAL GLAZING: Prepare Lemon Glaze by heating ¼ cup light corn syrup with 2 tablespoons lemon juice or 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind. Bring to a boil; brush on decorated cake. Add this final glaze shortly before serving.

Chili Supper

In Illinois chili con carne may be rich with tomato.

Joan Sedgwick's Illinois Chili
Steamed Rice Salad Bowl
Fresh Fruit Cupcakes

JOAN SEDGWICK'S ILLINOIS CHILI
1 pound ground beef
1 large onion, finely chopped (1 cup)
2 garlic cloves, minced
1 can (1 pound) tomatoes, undrained
1 can (8 ounces) tomato paste, undrained
1 can (1 pound) red kidney beans, undrained
2 teaspoons salt
10 twists (¼ teaspoon) freshly ground pepper
2 tablespoons chili powder
Heat a wide saucepan (about 3 quarts) and in it over moderate low heat cook the beef and onion, using a fork to crumble the meat into small particles, until the beef loses its red color. (If beef is very lean, you may need to add a tablespoon or so of fat; but if grease accumulates after cooking beef and onion, drain it all off.) Add the remaining ingredients. Simmer for at least 20 minutes, stirring several times and breaking up tomatoes. This makes a hot chili; if you want it even hotter, add chili powder to taste and simmer 5 or 10 minutes longer to blend flavors. Makes 6 servings. Nice served in rimmed soup plates.

Candy Pineapple For Fruitcake

If this year you've made a solemn resolution to bake those fruitcakes well ahead of Christmas, you may want to take the time to candy some pineapple to put in them.

Of course you can buy candied pineapple. But if you appreciate special flavor, try making your own.

As a special present for a cook who loves to bake, you can give some of the pineapple away. In this case, we suggest that you pack four rings of the fruit (they'll make one cup after being cut up) in one of those round clear plastic boxes with a tight fitting clasp-on cover. Such a box is inexpensive and the pineapple looks pretty in it.

This homemade candied pineapple is stickier than the bought. But no matter. The stickiness doesn't affect its performance in holiday goodies. Just layer rounds of wax paper or transparent plastic, wrapping between the candied pineapple rings and cover the container tightly.

CANDIED PINEAPPLE
1 can (1 pound and 14 ounces) pineapple in heavy syrup
2 cups sugar
1/2 cup light corn syrup

Turn pineapple into a strainer or colander to drain for about 1/2 hour — there should be 8 large slices of pineapple and about 1 1/2 cups of pineapple syrup.

In an electric skillet (or a wide saucepan), put the 1 1/2 cups pineapple syrup, sugar and corn syrup. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture reaches 234 degrees on a candy thermometer.

Add 4 slices of pineapple in a single layer. Bring to a full boil; reduce heat and simmer until pineapple becomes transparent around edges — 25 to 30 minutes; with a wide spatula, turn pineapple halfway through this cooking period. Remove pineapple to wire rack, placed over wax paper, to drain. Add remaining slices of pineapple to syrup and cook and drain the same way.

Let pineapple dry on racks for 24 hours at room temperature. If you like, you may cover it this way: place a couple of custard cups at opposite ends of the rack, but not on the rack; over the pineapple place a sheet of wax paper long enough to tuck under the far side of the cups so that the paper doesn't rest directly on the pineapple.

Use the candied pineapple for making fruitcake; the 8 slices when cut into small pieces will make 2 cups.

The syrup left after candying the pineapple may be used as a pancake syrup.

To store the candied pineapple, place the rings between rounds of wax paper in a tightly covered container; if kept for more than a day or so, refrigerate.

1 can (1 pound and 4 ounces) pineapple tidbits

Into a small container, turn the raisins and brandy; let stand at room temperature overnight so raisins will absorb practically all the brandy. Cut peel away from grapefruit so no white membrane remains; cut sections away from dividing membranes; drain. (Drain juice!) Add the undrained pineapple. Chill until serving time. Just before serving, mix in the raisins and, if you like, extra brandy to taste. Makes 6 servings.

Bill Bradley Ready To Play for Knicks

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The education of Rhodes Scholar Bill Bradley took another step forward Tuesday when the former Princeton All-America completed his Air Force hitch and registered with the New York Knicks for an advanced course in professional basketball.

Bradley will begin practicing with the Knicks Thursday, their next off day. He will accompany the team to Philadelphia on Friday as an observer and then spend the weekend at McGuire Air Force Base in New Jersey to fulfill his December Reserve commitment.

"I was beginning to have a little trouble sleeping at night in

Wyatt Raps Statement By Williams

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Red Sox Manager Dick Williams' Mexico City comment that relief pitcher John Wyatt "did not help us down the stretch" drew a bitter reply Tuesday from the right-hander.

"If I hadn't had the year I did there would not have been any stretch drive for the Red Sox," Wyatt said in a letter to Larry Claflin, Boston Record American baseball writer.

Wyatt wrote to comment on a Claflin dispatch from the baseball meetings last week in Mexico City. Claflin's story said Williams was asked how highly he rated Fred Wenz, a relief pitcher being brought up from Toronto.

"How much do we think of Wenz?" he quoted Williams. "We think so much of him we may trade Wyatt."

"Wyatt did not help us down the stretch. He didn't help us in a big series in Washington, and he didn't help us in a big game in Baltimore."

Wyatt read his manager's remarks in the Record American at his home in Kansas City and fired off a reply to Claflin. "Across the top of the first page of his letter he wrote 'please print.'"

"Mr. Williams seems to have based my entire season on a game in Baltimore, a series in Washington (one game) and the stretch drive," Wyatt wrote.

"True, I didn't pitch the final week of the season. My arm was tired and tightened up on me, Mr. Williams knew this."

"True, my loss to Baltimore Sept. 25 was a big one, but so were my win and save that I got in Cleveland on the 20th and 21st."

"I'm not the whole team, just one body. However, I feel if I hadn't had the year I did there would not have been any stretch drive for the Red Sox."

"Take away my 10 wins and 16 saves and the games I held the opposition which we went on to win, and add my seven losses to the plus side and it wouldn't have really been the great race as far as the Red Sox and Mr. Williams are concerned."

my eagerness to get going," a four-year, $500,000 pact with the Knicks last spring after two years as a Rhodes Scholar in England.

"I'll be ready to play when Mr. Donovan and Mr. McGuire (General Manager Eddie Donovan and Coach Dick McGuire) think I should. I think it will be on a day-to-day basis."

Bradley had not been expected out of the Air Force until his six months were up Jan. 6. His early release came about thanks to a sharp-eyed clerk at McGuire AFB, where Bradley reported Monday after completing a tour at the Air Force Personnel School in Amarillo, Tex.

When he checked in at McGuire, Bradley said he was notified of an Air Force regulation which states that "a member who completes basic military training and has... less than 15 days remaining to complete a 120-day tour is to be retained and released by his unit of attachment upon completion of the active-duty-for-training tour."

"I'm available to play basketball," Bradley told a packed news conference. "I'm glad to be back and anxious to be playing. I hope I can contribute something to the team."

"I'm looking forward to playing within the next few weeks. The last two months I worked out off-and-on as much as I could, primarily by myself."

But there's a difference between shooting by yourself and game competition."

Bradley reported at 6-foot-5 205 pounds, the same as when he was voted college basketball's Player of the Year for 1965. His last competitive game was with the Oxford U. team about a year ago.

The slumping Knicks are in fourth place in the National Basketball Association's Eastern Division with an 11-14 record, 6½ games behind Boston.

When Bradley finally suits up he can be carried as a 13th man for 30 days without counting on the roster. For the next 5½ years, he must give the Air Force one weekend a month and two weeks each summer.

Grid Assistant Quits Illinois

CHAMPAIGN Ill. (AP) — Jack Hart, assistant football coach at the University of Illinois since 1964, said Monday he is giving up coaching and will become a sales executive.

Hart, 30, offensive backfield coach, said his decision to quit, effective Jan. 1, stemmed from the Big Ten's punitive action against the school and some fund scandal last winter.

Two other assistant coaches, Buck McPhail and Bill Taylor, previously had left the school. Head Coach Pete Elliott was dismissed.

Hart said he feels the Big Ten's action would keep him from becoming a head coach.

"I can't imagine being in coaching with no chance for the head job."

Kentucky's Mike Pratt (22) had control of the ball, but he and teammate Thad Jaracz (55) are caught in a traffic jam between Florida's Neal Walker (41) and Davie Miller (32) in Monday's game.

Mets' Devine Replacing Musial as Cardinal GM

By CHARLIE BAROUH
Associated Press Sports Writer
ST. LOUIS (AP) — Bing Devine was hired Tuesday as general manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, three years after he left the same position following a dispute with club officials.

In a series of events announced in St. Louis and New York, Stan Musial stepped down as general manager of the world champion Cardinals and was replaced by Devine. The New York Mets named Vice President Johnny Murphy as acting general manager, replacing Devine.

August A. Busch Jr., president of the Cardinals, made the surprise announcement at the Busch Brewery in St. Louis. Board chairman Donald Grant of the Mets spoke with newsmen in New York via a telephone hookup from Homestead, Fla., to announce Devine's departure and Murphy's elevation.

Musial was in Acapulco, Mexico, with his wife at the time of the announcement. Devine, reached at Hobe Beach, Fla., said "the entire decision was based on what I considered the best interests of all members of my family. My wife and children and, for that matter, I myself, have never seemed able to adjust to the thoughts of leaving St. Louis permanently. Although we were resigned to the fact of eventually making such a move, when this opportunity was surprising. I presented to return to St. Louis with the Cardinals and to remain there as a family. I could see no other choice."

Grant said vice president Richard Meyer of the Cardinals approached him during the baseball meetings in Mexico two weeks ago for permission to talk to Devine.

"We wanted to keep Bing, but I gave him permission to talk," Grant said.

"Our organization is in excellent shape," Grant added. "No other changes are contemplated."

Grant said no decision has been reached yet about whether to retain Murphy as general manager on a permanent basis.

Busch said Musial asked to be relieved as general manager because of the press of other businesses. Musial said he could not devote all his attention to what he considered a full-time job. The death this summer of Julius "Biggie" Garagnani, Musial's partner in a St. Louis restaurant, clinched Musial's decision, Busch indicated.

Meyer said Devine's decision was not based on economics. He said Devine wanted to talk to his wife and family and decide what was best for them.

"He felt obligated to give his decision to Grant first and said the decision, whatever it would be, would not be changed by more negotiations," Meyer added.

Devine will become a vice president of the National League Cardinals in addition to his post as general manager. Musial will remain as a senior vice president in charge of baseball operations. Busch stressed that Musial, who played 22 years with the Cardinals, will be available to work with Devine.

Busch said there was little hesitation in picking Devine to replace Musial. "Certainly, we did not want to settle for less than the most outstanding man we could find," Busch said. "Preferably, we all agreed, that man should be one who has the interest of the Cardinals very close to him. We were looking for someone who knew the Cardinals and their operations inside out."

Devine left in August, 1964, before the Cardinals put on a fiery stretch drive and won the pennant on the last day. Devine departed after a dispute involving himself, Busch, the late Johnny Keane, who was then manager, and the late Branch Rickey, who acted as Busch's baseball advisor. Devine was replaced by Bob Howsam, who left before the 1967 season to become general manager of the Cincinnati Reds. Musial replaced him.

Keane resigned as manager of the Cardinals after their seven-game victory over the New York Yankees in the 1964 World Series. He went to the Yankees as manager of the 1965 season and was fired during the 1966 season.

Izzy Lang, one of the Philadelphia Eagles' starting backs at the start of the season, wants to be traded, he says. "I want to be traded for three reasons," he was quoted today in a published report. "I'm not playing, I'm disrespected and I'm underpaid."

Lang, a four-year National Football League veteran, started for the Eagles in the first half of the season while Timmy Brown was injured. Lang carried the ball 90 times for 294 yards before being benched.

"I can't picture myself being an Eagle anymore," said Lang, who was an Eagles' draft choice. "Not next year or the year after. Nine out of ten times I've had great days running. I've always had success," he said.

Ringo Will Surpass Mo's Record Sunday

NEW YORK (AP) — Jim Ringo, veteran center of the Philadelphia Eagles, will set an all-time National Football League record Sunday that will not be found in the routine weekly statistical tables.

When Ringo takes the field against the Dallas Cowboys in the Cotton Bowl he will be playing his 181st consecutive NFL game. Ringo now shares the record at 180 with Dick Modzelewski, who retired last year after 14 seasons as a defensive tackle with Washington, Pittsburgh, New York and Cleveland.

Ringo, who was 36 on Nov. 21 according to the Eagles' roster, still remembers the date, Sept. 26, 1954, when his streak started. Actually, it was the second year of his pro career because he sat out about half of the season at Green Bay in his rookie year.

Despite a back injury in 1956, mononucleosis in 1957, a staph infection in 1961 and pneumonia in 1964 he never missed a game. He was traded to the Eagles by Green Bay after the 1964 season.

Dolphins Waive Veteran Haynes

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The Miami Dolphins of the American Football League Tuesday announced they had asked waivers on veteran running back Abner Haynes.

Haynes, 30, had been with the Dallas Texans, moved to Kansas City when the Texans became the Chiefs and later played two years at Denver. He came to Miami in a trade prior to the start of the current season.

When asked about the importance of keeping the streak alive, Ringo said, "Who remembers a center except if he's in the record book?"

No statistics are available on centers' performances in the NFL but the other weekly figures show Leroy Kelly of Cleveland way out front in the rushing race with 1,128 yards as compared to 839 by runner-up Johnny Roland of St. Louis.

Sonny Jurgensen of Philadelphia took over the passing lead from John Unitas of Baltimore in the standings based on percentage of completions and interceptions, touchdowns and

HOUSTON, VANDY, KENTUCKY ALL WIN

Three Cage Teams Retain Hold on Top Ten Ranking

By BEN OLAN
Associated Press Sports Writer
Houston, Vanderbilt and Kentucky are off to head starts while seeking to maintain or strengthen their positions in The Associated Press' weekly major-college basketball poll.

The three scored victories Monday night while the seven other rated teams, including top-ranked UCLA, were idle.

Second-ranked Houston downed Abilene Christian 90-75; Vanderbilt, No. 8, defeated Auburn 78-65 and Kentucky, No. 9, beat Florida 99-76.

There is still, though, a heavy schedule on tap for the Top Ten this week, including

Rupp Happy 'Cats Back In Top Ten

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Three hundred and forty-nine days is a long time to be away from home and Adolph Rupp wants everybody to know it's nice to be back.

Rupp's Kentucky Wildcats, who have made the top ten national ratings practically a permanent address over the years, were ranked No. 9 in Tuesday's Associated Press poll.

They had been away from home since last Dec. 21.

"I really appreciate that," Rupp said when he learned of the rating. "Coming from nowhere to No. 9 is a long stride, especially when it doesn't include our victory of last night," he added.

Kentucky knocked off a Southeastern Conference top contender, Florida, 99-76, Monday night for the Wildcats' second victory in as many games. They whipped Michigan in the opener.

"The newspapers up in Detroit said after they saw us that we were the most underrated team they knew about," Rupp said. "We have enough depth this year and that should save us when we need it."

Rupp will get two chances this month to prove his point. His Wildcats meet fifth ranked North Carolina at Greensboro next Tuesday and sixth rated Dayton will be here for Kentucky's Invitational Tournament Dec. 22-23.

Kentucky meets eighth ranked Vanderbilt at Nashville Jan. 6.

Rick Mount Playing On Steel Innersole

By PAUL PETROTTA

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Purdue's Rick Mount, who made his college basketball debut with a 28-point performance against national champion UCLA, will play with a steel inner sole in his shoe at least until Christmas.

The former Lebanon High School star suffered a crack in a bone on his left foot Oct. 27 and missed four weeks of practice. "The foot is healing but it feels sore," he said. "It bothers me when I run and try to make quick moves, especially when I try to cut to the left."

Mount said the foot is strong but just sore where the fracture isn't bad and that he can play if I can stand the pain," he said.

The stainless steel inner sole covers most of Mount's foot except the toes. He wears it for practice and games.

"But the steel doesn't bother me," he said, "and the doctors say I can probably take the sole off about Christmas."

During Thanksgiving vacation, he strengthened the foot by walking about five miles a day while hunting.

The 6-foot-3 sophomore, who averaged 33 points a game his last two years in high school and had a single-game high of 57 points, drew praise from UCLA Coach John Wooden after the Bruins escaped with a 73-71 decision over Purdue Saturday night.

Mount, hitting 11 of 27 field goal attempts, rallied the Bollermakers from a 67-55 deficit in the last six minutes. His free throw after a technical foul on UCLA tied the game 71-71.

The sophomore took Purdue's last shot, a jumper from the corner.

"When I went up I thought the shot was in, but the ball fiddled around and came out," he said. Purdue Coach George King said Mount did an outstanding job.

"He played 37 minutes," King said, "and I didn't dream in my wildest moments that he could go that long with his bad foot."

Pair Vet Lions Out for Season

NEW YORK (AP) — The Detroit Lions placed punter Hanko Pat Studstill and tight end Ron Kramer on the injured reserve list Tuesday, losing the services of both veterans for the rest of the National Football League season.

The Lions have activated running back Mike Bass of Michigan and tight end Jerry Zawadzka of Columbia, two members of their taxi squad, for Sunday's game with the New York Giants at Yankee Stadium.

two games matching ranked clubs.

In the first poll of the regular season, UCLA's Bruins collected 31 first-place votes in the balloting by a national panel of 33 sports writers and broadcasters.

Houston and Louisville, No. 3, received the other first-place votes. UCLA just managed to beat Purdue 73-71 in its season opener last Saturday. Houston defeated Sacramento State 110-79 and Louisville walloped Georgetown, Ky., 118-86.

The Bruins, unbeaten in 30 games last year when they won the national championship, accumulated 327 points in the latest balloting on a basis of 10 points for a first-place vote, 9 for second, 8 for third etc. Houston had 259 points and Louisville 250.

Kansas was fourth followed in order by North Carolina, Dayton, Purdue, Vanderbilt, Kentucky and Boston College.

Each of the ranking teams won opening games last week except Purdue and Boston College. The Eagles played their first game Tuesday night against Dartmouth.

Louisville plays Kansas in a battle of No. 3 and No. 4 teams Wednesday night and North Carolina, No. 5, meets Vanderbilt, No. 8, Saturday night.

Louisville and Kansas are in action again Saturday night, the Cardinals against Northwestern and Kansas against Chicago Loyola. Both games will be in Chicago Stadium.

UCLA's schedule matches it against Wichita State Friday and Iowa State Saturday. Houston takes on North Dakota State Thursday and Illinois Saturday.

Dayton, which faced Miami of Ohio Tuesday night, plays Eastern Kentucky Saturday. Purdue meets Washington twice, on Friday and Saturday.

Kentucky's next games are against Xavier of Ohio Wednesday and Penn Saturday. Boston College plays its second game of the campaign Saturday night against Connecticut.

College Top Ten

The Top Ten, with first-place votes in parentheses, season records through games of Sat. Dec. 2 and total points on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis:

Texas at El Paso, Villanova, Virginia Tech, Washington State, Weber State, West Virginia, Wisconsin, Wyoming.

Grid Writers Elect Pont Coach of Year

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — John Pont, the architect of Indiana's spectacular football rise, ran away from the field in the annual voting for Coach of the Year by members of the Football Writers Association of America.

Bert McGrane, secretary of the Football Writers Association, announced Tuesday that Pont collected 54 per cent of the 770 votes cast to handily finish ahead of Dee Andros of upstart Oregon State, 7-2-1.

Doug Dickey of Tennessee, 8-1 nosed out Chuck Fairbanks of Oklahoma, 8-1 for third. These two will pit their teams in the Orange Bowl game, Jan. 1.

Pont, 39, was a halfback at Miami of Ohio from 1949-51 and his No. 42 is the only jersey the school ever has retired. He became coach there in 1956 and had a 43-22-1 record before moving to Yale after seven years.

The one-time Navy submariner had a 12-5-1 success in two years in the Ivy League, took over a habitual loser at Bloomington in 1956 and the first two seasons produced 3-16-1 record.

This year's sophomore-dominated team fought and scraped to eight straight victories before falling to Minnesota, then upset Purdue in the finale to finish 9-1. The Hoosiers had won only eight games in four previous years.

The result was a three-way share of the Big Ten title with Purdue and Minnesota, and a berth in the Rose Bowl against Southern California.

Oregon State handed Southern Cal's national champions their lone defeat, 3-0; upset Purdue and tied UCLA. Andros' club performed all three feats after successive losses to Washington and Brigham Young.

Pitt Coach Has Sense of Humor (He Needed It)

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Coach Dave Hart poked fun Monday at himself and his University of Pittsburgh football team, which compiled a 1-8 record while losing by scores like 58-0.

"After one bad game I came home to get this greeting from my daughter: 'you ain't much of a coach, dad.'"

"Before I could say anything my wife rebuked her: 'Candy: You should say, 'you aren't much of a coach, dad.'"

"I made my share of mistakes, just as well as the boys did. There was the time we had 12 players on the field at the same time."

"Bob Bazylik, our quarterback, quickly called a huddle and said, 'there's one too many players. After this play, one of you dummies get off in a hurry!'"

"We got away with the 12 players, but in the next huddle there were only five around."

Surgery Slated For Bear Guard

CHICAGO (AP)—Don Croft, check, reserve offensive guard with the Chicago Bears injured in a game with San Francisco last Sunday, will undergo knee surgery next week, Coach George Halas said Tuesday.

Halas said rookie guard Doug Kriewald of Austin, Tex., the Bears' No. 6 draft choice this year, will be activated to replace Croftcheck. Kriewald played for West Texas State.

The Bears play the Minnesota Vikings Sunday, then wind up the season Dec. 17 at Atlanta.

Strong Back, Weak Mind Theory Dispelled

By DUFFY DAUGHTERY

Head Football Coach
Michigan State University
Being in New York the last few days has given me once again a chance to dispel the mistaken notion that football players are men with strong backs and weak minds.

Football players today are the highest type individuals. They come from different backgrounds and some have risen above poverty.

I talked with most of the players chosen on the American Football Coaches All-America team and also the scholar-athletes who were being honored at the 10th annual awards dinner of the National Football Foundation.

These were outstanding college players from the length and breadth of our great country. Their manners, appearance and poise were impressive just as during their great seasons. Each of them had that clean cut look.

There have been many foes of unearned aid which enables a boy to get a college athletic scholarship. However, most athletes receive only the aid permissible under the NCAA rules which means room, board, tuition, books and $15 a month for incidentals such as laundry.

Most of these fine young men would not have had the benefit of a college education but for this help. They certainly would not have received this help were it not for their dedication and hard work.

It is more than just the hours they spend while their sport is in season. They are trying all year long to better themselves. They continually make sacrifices by giving up things enjoyed by non-athletes. They diligently work out, run, lift weights and use other means to improve their athletic skills.

Almost without exception these young men will become more than successful citizens. Many will become fine leaders in their community.

Football men have learned the value of teamwork as witness an experience of last Friday evening when my wife, daughter and I flew into New York and took a cab to our hotel. Waiting for the cab at the hotel were the three top Heisman vote getters, in town for a number of award dinners.

They were UCLA's Gary Beban, the Heisman Trophy winner; the nation's leading rusher, O. J. Simpson from Southern California, and the nation's top scorer, Leroy Keyes of Purdue. Here they were ready to go sightseeing together.

I hope their coaches appreciate the fact that I gave them our cab because all were without topcoats in subfreezing weather. Beban, being from California, was shivering. Simpson didn't look so warm either. Bebes apparently had become acclimated because of the colder weather around Lafayette, Ind.

Seeing them together for the first time brought back memories. At first I was stunned because I have seen these three devastating fellows in my sleep. They gave me nightmares.

Two of them gained huge chunks of yardage running through and around our Spartans this fall and Beban helped topple our unbeaten in the Rose Bowl following the 1965 season. Seeing and talking with these fine young gentlemen brought into sharp focus how modest they are despite their fantastic deeds. These three represent the cream of American youth.

I'm sure their performances and how they react to public adulation will have a greater emphasis on our amateur sports competition in this country. A boy can't go wrong following their example.

Pro scouts will beat a path to Beban's door because he's a senior. Gary, a great quarterback, will lead some pro team out of the wilderness.

The pros will have to wait another year on Simpson and Keyes because they are juniors. Beban, whose team missed the Rose Bowl by one point, still has two games to play — the East-West Shrine game at San Francisco on Dec. 30 and the Hula Bowl game at Honolulu, Jan. 6.

In Hawaii, Gary will play for Tommy Prothro's South team against the North squad which I will coach. South Carolina's Paul Dietzel will assist me.

Keyes, being a junior, can't take part in a postseason game but a lot of people will be picking Leroy to lead Purdue into Pasadena next year, possibly against O.J.

Simpson, of course, will be in the Jan. 1

Area Men Serve In Cost-Cut Plan

HARRISBURG — Governor Raymond P. Shafer announced November 16 the appointment of Kenneth L. Ellis and Gifford O. Quiggle to serve in his cost reduction program. Ellis, who lives at Grand Valley and Quiggle, who lives at Warren, are employed as assistant superintendents in the highway department. They will serve as solicitors in the program.

Shafer's cost reduction program is his plan to achieve efficient and economical state government. The Commonwealth currently operates on an annual budget of $1,800,000,000. It is the immediate goal of the program to save $18 million, or one percent of that budget. The cost reduction concept was launched in the Commonwealth in 1965. On Aug. 29, 1967, it was placed under the direct supervision of the Secretary of Administration and Budget Secretary Arthur F. Sampson to increase the scope of savings.

Schweiker Names Campaign Chiefs

Two northwestern Pennsylvanians have been named to head activities of the Dick Schweiker for U.S. Senator Committee in that section of the state.

Mortimer E. Graham, chairman of the Erie County Republican Committee, and Samuel A. Breene, a member of the State Republican Finance Executive Committee from Venango County, were named Tuesday by Congressman Richard S. Schweiker, who last week announced he is a candidate to oppose Senator Joseph S. Clark.

In addition to heading the Schweiker drive in northwestern Pennsylvania, the two men have also been appointed to the statewide Schweiker policy committee, which is headed by Montgomery County Republican chairman Andrew L. Lewis, Jr.

Graham and Breene were leaders in the 1965 pre-campaign activity which led to winning of the Republican gubernatorial nomination by Governor Raymond P. Shafer.

Graham, formerly vice-president and general counsel of the Hammerrill Paper Co., now practices law in Erie. Before becoming Erie County chairman he was active for 15 years on the Republican County executive and finance committees. Breene is well known as a Republican fund-raiser in western Pennsylvania. He is a partner in the law firm of Breene, Frame and Magee, of Oil City and Franklin.

Teacher Given Hearing on Kidnap Charge

DUNKIRK, N. Y. — A hearing for a Dunkirk High School teacher, who is charged with the unlawful imprisonment and kidnapping of a 15-year-old girl, resumed here yesterday.

Arrested December 1 on the charges was Ralph G. Burke, 33, of 109 Warsaw st., Dunkirk.

The Social Studies teacher appeared Monday before City Judge August R. Janowski who adjourned the case until yesterday morning.

Burke was arrested by Dunkirk police officers last Friday shortly after the girl, described only as being a 15-year-old high school student, was reported as "missing" by her parents.

The victim's parents were notified Friday that she had been found.

Police authorities said that at the time of Burke's arrest, he was carrying over $1,000 but has refused to say what the money was for.

Other details were being withheld by Dunkirk police late Monday night.

Blocks Phone As Man Lies Helpless

CORRY — An inconsiderate woman, who refused to give up her telephone line in an emergency, could well have a tragedy on her conscience had the victim of the mishap not survived.

Sunday morning, Louis Cook, 61, of RD 2, Corry, went to inspect a hen house located some distance from his home, telling his wife he would return by noon.

However, when noon arrived, Mrs. Cook became alarmed and called to her husband from the house but received no answer. Although she has been ill in recent months, Mrs. Cook walked to the hen house where she found the two-story building collapsed under a heavy blanket of snow.

On calling to her husband, Mrs. Cook received no answer. She rushed back to the house to call for help but heard a call in progress. She pleaded with the woman on the line that she had an emergency and needed the phone.

The woman on the line, apparently perturbed that Mrs. Cook wanted the line, exchanged a few words and walked away, leaving the phone off the hook. Mrs. Cook said she could hear background noise on the open line.

Desperate for help, she undertook a walk to the home of a neighbor where she told the family her husband was trapped in the hen house.

Neighbors rallied to the situation and with crowbars and handtools, raced to the hen house. A search of the building found Cook pinned beneath a rafter.

He was carried to the Cook house where he is recovering with only multiple bruises of the body after his ordeal.

It is believed he was unconscious for nearly two hours before being rescued.

Trinity Church Joins Choir Music Movement

Trinity Memorial Episcopal Church in Warren has been accepted for membership with the Royal School of Church Music and in so doing becomes affiliated to a movement which has members in all parts of the English-speaking world.

All these choirs are working for the same object, the improvement of music of church services and in being affiliated they are able to make use of various benefits available for members.

Trinity choirs under the direction of Organist and Choirmaster Carl Stout, are now set up with separate rehearsals for 23 boys and 16 girls, using the system developed by the Royal School of Church Music.

This development calls for a first year chorister as a Probationer; second year chorister as Junior Choir member; the third year as a Senior Chorister and the fourth year as Full Chorister.

Church music, awards and choir vestments are all available at a discount from the Royal School of Church Music.

The RSCM was founded in 1927 by Sir Sydney Nicholson, who gave up his post as Organist of Westminster Abbey to devote his attention to the musical needs and problems of parish churches and provide a center for training church musicians. The RSCM headquarters are at Addington Palace, Croydon and the school now has a very widespread influence and membership.

Last summer Mr. Stout attended the first training session held in this country at Westminster Choir College, Princeton, N.J., for the instruction and training of the use of the RSCM system.

Any information about RSCM can be obtained by contacting Mr. Stout at Trinity Memorial Church, Warren, 16365.

State Inspector Will Investigate Fire Death

FRANKLIN — The state fire inspector has been called into investigate the fiery death of Albert Edwards, 61, who perished in his mobile home early Sunday morning in Franklin's Third Ward district.

Franklin firemen were called to the fire at 3:34 a.m. Sunday when two men who were passing by noticed the flames.

The two men attempted to enter the trailer but a wall of fire drove them back.

Firemen found the body of Edwards near the door of the trailer kitchen after they had extinguished the blaze.

Franklin fire chief A. W. Hanna reported no cause has yet been found for the fire which completely destroyed the trailer. The body was discovered at the opposite end of the trailer and Hanna said the blaze apparently started in the bedroom.

Dr. Frank E. Butters, Venango County coroner, said Edwards' body was badly burned. It has not yet been determined, however, if the man died from burns or asphyxiation.

State Hospital Student Nurses Hurt in Mishap

Two student nurses at Warren State Hospital were treated at Titusville Hospital and released for injuries suffered in a one-car accident at 5:30 p.m. Monday on the Enterprise road, two miles west of Route 27.

State police trooper William C. Dudnick, who investigated, said a car driven by Darlene M. McWilliams, 20, of RD 1, Transfer, Pa., traveling east, hit an icy spot, went out of control, left the highway, ran up an embankment and rolled over.

Miss Williams suffered lacerations to both knees and her passenger, Carol Nottingham, 20, of Sharon, sustained abrasions to the right leg.

Police listed damage to the car as total.

UFO is Sighted Hovering Over RD 1 Van Home

FRANKLIN — Edward Moon, of RD 1, Van, reported Monday night witnessing an unidentified flying object hovering over his house.

Moon reported seeing the object, illuminated by a revolving red light, after a neighbor telephoned him that the object was above his home.

The object described by Moon is similar to an earlier UFO sighting by many area residents two years ago in the same area. Moon said the object was about the size of an airplane with a revolving red light on its crest. He could not determine the shape of the object.

Says Erie Can't Meet State Order

ERIE — Traffic Engineer William T. Jackman said Monday that a state order for the city to revamp all traffic signal devices by the end of next year was impossible.

The order, issued by State Highways Secretary Robert G. Bartlett said all city traffic devices must be brought into conformance with national standards by Dec. 31, 1968.

Jackman said this means the city would be in violation because it can't possibly update the entire system in one year without spending "fantastic" amounts of money in both material and manpower.

He said $1 million was a conservative estimate of what the renovation would cost. "This is assuming we would do all the work ourselves and at today's prices," he added.

If the work was farmed out to contractors, the price would almost double, the traffic engineer stated. "Installation costs at least as much as cost of equipment."

The task is seemingly unmountable because most of the city devices do not conform with federal regulations.

Failure to comply with the state order may mean a cutoff of state and federal highway construction funds. Such an action would doom the Bayfront Highway East Side spur road to 1-90 and the proposed East Access Bridge to Presque Isle.

The 1968 budget contained $250,000 for renovation of the downtown traffic system but the appropriation is on thin ice since it is part of the capital improvement program. Council is not too happy with the capital improvements program.

Even if it passed, Jackman said a full year will be needed to update the downtown system alone because there are only three city employees available to do the job.

Man Dies in Fire At Driftwood, Pa.

DRIFTWOOD — A 56-year-old laborer died but a 17-year-old girl baby sitter led two children to safety as fire early Sunday morning destroyed two apartments over a store here.

The store itself was heavily damaged according to the owner.

The victim was Francis Holtschauer, 56, an employee of the Mollary Lumber Co. in nearby Emporium. The baby sitter is Candace Callahan, daughter of the store's owner.

Her quick action save the lives of her two charges, Kimberly Wyckoff, 7 and five-year-old Jeffrey. She told authorities she smelled smoke about 3:20 a.m. as she was looking after the children for their mother, Mrs. Mary Wyckoff. She immediately called her father, then, going into the hall, saw flames under the door of the Holtschauer apartment.

Bundling the children in blankets, she took them to their grandmother who lives nearby. The children and their mother are residing there now until they can find new quarters.

Driftwood volunteer firemen battled the blaze for about two hours in sub-freezing temperatures. They found the victim's body on the living room floor.

Origin of the fire is under investigation by the state police fire marshal called in from Curwensville.

New Castle Gets Model Cities $$$

HARRISBURG — Governor Raymond P. Shafer Monday presented a $15,000 state model cities grant to New Castle, making it the third city in the Commonwealth to receive funds under this program.

The check was presented Monday afternoon at the New Castle airport to Mayor Robert E. Jamison and William B. Patterson, executive director of the New Castle Redevelopment Authority. Also present were mayor elect Carl A. Cialella Jr.; Dominick E. Cioffi, representative from the 9th District; and Senator Donald Osterling from the 21st senatorial district.

This money will be utilized by New Castle for planning the housing and redevelopment phases of its proposed model cities programs which cover a 40 block area of mixed residential and commercial uses on the south side.

New Castle is the third Pennsylvania city to receive funds under this program, which was initiated August 10 by Governor Shafer. The two previous recipients were Erie for $26,000 and Chester for $25,000.

Pennsylvania became the first state in the nation to initiate such a program at the state level when its Department of Community Affairs made $700,000 available to those cities which contained sizeable areas vulnerable to urban unrest.

Two Kane boys, both around 14-years-of-age, face juvenile court action for theft of a purse at a Kane store. The purse, property of a store employee, and the $84 it contained were recovered. Timely discovery of the theft of the purse from the back counter and presence of the boys resulted in apprehending them, police said. One of the boys, according to police, was under probation.

Captive Audience

That new fad of television crept into the grand jury report Monday in Smethport. The jurors, following an inspection of McKean County Jail, recommended in a report to Judge Glenn E. Mencer that a TV set be located for jail inmates in the "cell block area." Sheriff L. W. Pendleton said later the only television set at the present time is available to trustees only and located in another section of the jail. The recommendation did not state the number of channels that should be made available to the "captive audience."

Wanderings

by Marion Honhart

THE SWISH OF SKIS will be heard in the stillness of the snow covered hills, it is to be hoped, this winter. Three consecutive almost snowless winters - - - at least what snow there was was not conducive to good skiing - - - were apparently too much for Warren County Skiers, and Ski Club activities, or lack of them, reflected the situation. This year though, hopes are high, and the club has reason to believe a very good season is just ahead. So, they met and reorganized. Elected to lead the club for the season are: President, Chuck VanHorn of Warren; vice president, John Smith of Pittsfield; secretary and treasurer, Marion North of Pleasant Township; and on the Board of Directors, Sandra Donaldson of Warren, Bob Blume of Clarendon, Jim Keller and Bob Peltz of Warren, Herb Dillenkofer of North Warren, Chuck VanHorn - - - a Warren resident for the past three years - - - has a background of experience in ski club activities and management and will use it to revitalize the new club. The time and date of the next meeting will be announced - - - it will be open to all who are interested.

PUPPETS, PUPPETS, PUPPETS! Somehow you associate them with Christmas but the Warren General Hospital Auxiliary has a special committee under the chairmanship of Mrs. W. H. Alexander that makes them the year round - - - taking some time off for summer vacation - - - for young patients admitted to the hospital's Pediatrics Ward. The colorful hand puppet clowns are made of white material, polka dotted in red, green, blue and yellow, with a ruff that picks up one of the colors, and the merry, painted, clown face topped with a peaked cap. There is an average of about fifty of these given out each month straight through the year. The finished product is packaged in a plastic bag and tied with a colorful ribbon. Mrs. Alexander mentioned that it is absolutely impossible to look at one of these little clowns without smiling. Outside help is given her committee by Mrs. Jeannette Hightower of Watson Home, who, in her spare time and as a hobby, has made more than 1500 Pinky Dolls (the project preceding the hand puppets) and works with equal enthusiasm making clowns; and, Trinity Churchwomen. More workers would be welcome.

AN OPEN HOUSE to honor Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Meleen will be held on Sunday, December 10th. All friends and neighbors are invited to attend from 3 to 5 o'clock and from 7 to 10 o'clock, at the Bill Meleen residence, 29 Fourth Street, Youngsville. Mr. Stephen Meleen and Miss Toni Nassembe were married on Saturday, November 25th, in Pittsburgh. They will be living in Grove City where Stephen is a Senior majoring in Accounting. He will receive his Bachelor of Science in Accounting in June 1968, and, at the same time, his commission as a Second Lieutenant in the U. S. Air Force. The new Mrs. Meleen has had two years majoring in Elementary Teaching at Grove City College.

MINIATURES: Jackson Run Mothers Club will meet on Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, December 19th, at the home of Mrs. Ida McKillip on Daugherty Run road. There will be a gift exchange.

"How To Start An Art Collection" will be given tomorrow evening at 8 at the meeting of the Warren Art League. Speakers will be Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hemingway of the Hemingway Gallery, Jamestown. The program will be preceded by the regular business meeting at 7:30.

First Lutheran Church Women meet in Fellowship Hall on Monday evening at 7:30 for a lovely Candlelight Service, and program. The Christmas Story will be told with illustrations and carol singing. This is open to all who wish to attend. Light refreshments will be served.

Jamestown Art Authorities To Tell 'How' To Collect

The December meeting of the Warren Art League will be held at the Warren Art Center, 345 E. Fifth Street tomorrow. The business meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. followed by the speakers of the evening Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hemingway, owners of the Hemingway Galleries, 201 Lafayette Street, Jamestown, New York.

The Hemingway Galleries were formally opened September 18, 1967. At this time, there were art experts, decorators and representatives of the press, radio and television from three states (Ohio, New York, and Pennsylvania) present and a group of sixty were flown in from Syracuse and Buffalo on a special Mohawk Airlines chartered flight.

The need for a continuous promotional campaign to attract potential collectors became apparent with a realization of the size of the operation in an area that is not the center of traffic.

A branch outlet gallery is located in the Picasso Building penthouse, 210 E. 58th Street,

New York in charge of Holly Hemingway, a recent University of Rochester art graduate and daughter of the Hemingways. Frank Hemingway, a first cousin of the late author, Ernest Hemingway, and his wife began to collect art some 25 years ago for their own enjoyment. When the paintings, sculpture and other objects overflowed their home at Bemus Point it was decided to open a gallery at Jamestown catering to collectors.

The eight galleries, located in their own building at 201 Lafayette Street comprise 40,000 square feet of floor space making it practical to display in a tasteful setting more than 2,000 works by 200 artists from 20 nations.

In order to produce a volume of sales adequate for the situation and to bring in prospective purchasers from a wide area in the east, the galleries sell both traditional and contemporary works, dating from the 16th Century to today.

TABLE MANNERS AID POISE

Children who have early and consistent training in table etiquette develop grace and poise that helps them to meet others with self-assurance. Appropriate table manners and service should be practiced daily, at each meal. It's up to parents to set the example to be followed by children.

Those parents who were fortunate enough to grow up in a home where good table manners were practiced daily will find it easy to train their children. Mealtime enjoyment is greater when the whole family is familiar with, and practices good table manners.

If you have questions about your table service and manners, here's a suggestion—take the table service correspondence course from The Pennsylvania State University. Besides teaching table etiquette and service for family and guests, the course describes the selection and care of table linens, silver, glassware, and china. It includes information on stain removal and gives table decorating ideas. How to manage buffet service for a large or small group is explained. Common sense answers to table etiquette questions are given and suggestions for coffee hours and afternoon teas.

To own the course on Table Service is simple—put $1.50 in an envelope. Address it to Table Service, Box 5000, University Park, Pennsylvania 16802. Check or money order should be made payable to The Pennsylvania State University.

Mrs. Lafferty said their hosts seemed very receptive and that their combined group thought the evening very beneficial and enjoyable. The CFM family Christmas party will be December 17. Father Smith gave the schedule, from December 5 through 9, at which time Mr. Joseph Wise, representative of the Archdiocese of Louisville, Kentucky, will be in the parish to conduct Days of Reflection with the school children and adults of the various parish societies.

Several new teachers' reference books have been purchased. At the suggestion of

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

Bold Sheets
Inspire Lively
Sleepwear

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My sweetheart is in the service. Four months ago he went to Vietnam. I have been writing to him five times a week and he has been writing to me about three times a week.

Yesterday his mother telephoned to say he had bought an engagement ring for me over there and is sending it to them. He has asked that his father slip the ring on my finger and then I am to consider myself engaged.

My question is this: What should I do when his father puts the ring on my finger. Should I kiss him, say thank you, or what? His wife will be present and his younger son will be on hand to take a picture which will be sent to my fiancé. Thank you. —HANDS ACROSS THE SEA

HANDS: I don't think a boy in Vietnam (or any place else) should be very enthusiastic about a picture of his sweetheart kissing his father. Just say "thank you" and send your fiancé a picture of you looking adoringly at the ring.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: This is one letter I must write or I won't be able to sleep tonight.

I say hooray for Grampa—the 80-year-old widower who is going steady with a nice lady and buys tickets to ball games and concerts and has taken to wearing a tweed jacket and sneakers. His children should be delighted that he is enjoying life. My mother died four years ago and I'd be thrilled if my father showed an interest in sports or music or anything. All he does is sit around the house and cry—and he's not 80, he's 64. He is depressed, miserable and he makes everyone around him feel utterly helpless because nothing we do for him makes any difference.

Please, tell those kids who hate to see Grampa spending all that money and "acting like a fool" that they are lucky. —EXPERIENCE TALKING

DEAR EX: You told 'em and I bless you for it. Thanks for writing.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our eight-year-old son must go to the hospital and be operated on for a hernia next month. I feel we should tell him in advance and prepare him for what is coming. My mother says we should keep quiet about it. According to mother kids are never happy about going to the hospital and the less time they have to dread it the better. "Just tell Johnny you are going for a ride and take him to the hospital," is her advice. Is my mother right or wrong? —DARN. DIFKINOW

DEAR DARNED: Your mother is wrong. Tricking a child is the worst possible approach. It is far better to tell Johnny in advance (three days is enough) that he is going to the hospital and that the doctor is going to make him 100 per cent well. You might even make it sound like an exciting adventure. The doctor will be glad to brief you on what to say if you need his help.

How will you know when the real thing comes along? Ask Ann Landers. Send for her booklet "Love or Sex and How To Tell The Difference." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Opening lead: Jack of ♣.
Failure by West to find the killing lead against South's four spade contract was not necessarily fatal to the defensive prospects; however, an impulsive play subsequently assured declarer of victory.

Also West could have assured declarer's defeat by cashing the ace of diamonds at the outset, he chose to open the jack of hearts. South won the trick in his hand with the queen and proceeded to cash the ace and king in order to dispose of the jack of diamonds.

West ruffed the third round of hearts with the nine of spades and made a belated attempt to obtain his diamond trick by shifting to the ace of that suit. South ruffed and led a spade from his hand. West was in with the queen and continued diamonds. North put up the king, and another round of spades brought forth the jack, king, and ace.

Declarer claimed the balance and his contract, having lost three trump tricks on the deal.

West should have realized, when his opponent was in so great a hurry to dispose of the jack of diamonds, that South had a singleton and the diamond trick was, therefore, irretrievably lost. Unless East has a trick in clubs, the only legitimate chance to recover is to play partner for a singleton club and two trumps, in which case East may be given a club ruff.

If West shifts to a club after running the third heart, he will regain the lead with the queen of spades in time to play a second club, for East to trump with the jack of spades. The ace of spades subsequently scores the setting trick.

Your Horoscope

By Frances Drake

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 6, 1967

ARIES (March 21 to April 20) — Mixed influences. You may have a desire to do something "different" but before you do, be certain that it will be to your advantage. Some tendencies toward carelessness, needless controversy indicated: Avoid!

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21) — Some changes of plan may be suggested. Discuss fully and agree only if they seem truly feasible. Don't cause needless controversy, however, and, above all, don't worry!

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21) — You may run into some opposition now, but your keenness and sense of humor will help you win more points than would force or obstinacy. Stress efficiency, tact, serenity.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23) — You may have to make some compromises. Restrain no one from expressing his opinion, but be careful whom you eventually follow. Don't, however, suspect that all suggestions are ill-conceived. This would only lead to undue skepticism and, eventually, a "do-nothing" attitude.

LEO (July 24 to August 23) — A friendly day! You should pick up new interests here and there, have an opportunity to use your creative abilities. Wrap up essentials first, then enjoy outside activities.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23) — Do not become discouraged with those who do not approve of your ideas or who are unwilling to make improvements you suggest. Recognize that everyone is not able to act when you wish—and, usually, for valid reasons.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23) — Ride along with propitious influences now. Acquaint yourself with new trends and take measures as occasion demands.

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 23) — With your innate enthusiasm and competence, you should be able to reap a fine harvest now. Some good opportunities for advancing your interests in the office.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21) — You usually enjoy a challenge, and you may meet some interesting ones now. Meet with your usual vigor, but don't undertake enterprises you would not ordinarily consider.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20) — Fine gains for like efforts. However, be on the lookout for "gimmicks" that could trip you, persons who would undermine your self-confidence by belittling your efforts.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19) — Some changes or adjustments may be necessary. If so, handle in your usual philosophical manner. Where you should "stand pat" however, be firm — but in a tactful manner.

PESCES (February 20 to March 20) — Avoid haste and recklessness in the mistaken notion that you will get ahead more quickly. Easy does it now! Some distant goals may be brought closer.

YOU BORN TODAY are usually mentally, as well as physically, "on the go." Many inventors, sportsmen, athletes, writers, vitally energetic speakers and entertainers were born in this Sign. You are ready for travel, new devices, fresh interests always; your mind thrives on them. Your fields—and this goes for pastimes, too, are the creative ones, or those that permit expression of your ingenuity and gift for organization. Birthdate of: J.L. Gay Lussac, Fr. physicist, chemist; Warren Hastings, 1st. Gov. Gen'l. Brit. India; Dave Brubeck, jazz pianist.

How to Keep Well By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

AN UNHAPPY EMPLOYEE
One of my most perplexing patients was a highly-skilled man who worked for a large corporation. He visited my office once a week complaining of palpitation of the heart and shortness of breath. Now and then the family called me in the middle of the night because the man thought he was dying. His pulse was unusually rapid, yet medicines never helped.

As time passed, it became obvious that his symptoms were related to the way his boss treated him. Both men started up the ladder together but my patient failed to reach the top. His fellow worker, who became boss, never let him forget it. The situation reached a climax forcing me to contact the firm. Cure was immediate when my patient was given a disability pension.

WE NEVER know how many illnesses stem from employee-boss relationships. Rapport between the employee, his superior, and co-workers is much more important to health than are environment, proper lighting, heat, hours of work, and salary. A sense of accomplishment is a vital ingredient of happiness. Good executives know this and are more interested in people than in breaking production records. By the same token, production reaches its peak when employees are happy and are part of the team.

The worker who does just enough to get by or who tolerates the job only because the pay is good, usually is discontented. More time is spent dreading his sorrows in the local pub or on frequent visits to the physician. These individuals need a job in keeping with their abilities and personality.

But situations such as these are not always hopeless. By giving a little, the boss may do the same. Tactfulness is the key. Be business-like when dealing with the chief, but maintain the dignity that goes with your position. This would not have worked with my patient, because his boss was unwilling to give of himself.

TOMORROW: Tranquilizer Gun.
Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

ACID AND ALKALINE URINE
B.J.D. writes: My urinalysis shows I have an acid urine. What should I do about it?

REPLY
Nothing, if you have no symptoms. If the test were repeated tomorrow, the reaction might be alkaline because acidity is governed by what we eat and drink. On the other hand, if you insist upon an alkaline urine, a little baking soda will do the trick.

TODAY'S HEALTH HINT
Never take drugs prescribed for another person.

Make a Sugarplum Tree

Christmas trees are great fun if they're edible. This year make a sugarplum tree with Old-Fashioned Molasses-Coconut Balls, and let it be the centerpiece for a "Come Over and Help Trim the Tree" party. These Molasses-Coconut Balls have a tart molasses flavor that comes from a little vinegar in the recipe. They're similar to the old-time "Sauerkraut" candy, so named because of the texture that coconut imparted. The coconut that's recommended for these candies is the new cookie coconut, which has recently been introduced. It's a medium-cut coconut, moist and tender, with the ideal texture for cookies, cakes, and confections such as Molasses-Coconut Balls. And it's nice to use as a garnish, too—a Christmas drift of white will make your holiday puddings and fruit compotes even more festive. The children will enjoy helping to shape the balls after you've cooked the candy. Let them arrange the tree, too, and "trim" it with marzipan fruits. Coconut Butter Drops are quick cookies to make on a busy day when you're trying to shop for a few last gifts and pick up the teens after choir practice. They are speedy drop cookies, but their buttery richness makes them very "holliday."

OLD-FASHIONED MOLASSES-COCONUT BALLS

2 3 cup sugar
1/4 cup light molasses
3 tablespoons light corn syrup
3 tablespoons hot water
1 tablespoon butter
2 teaspoons vinegar
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 3/4 cups (about) cookie coconut
Combine sugar, molasses, corn syrup, hot water, butter, vinegar, and salt in a saucepan. Place over medium heat and cook, stirring occasionally, until a small amount of mixture forms a soft ball in cold water (or to a temperature of 240 degrees). Remove from heat. Cool about 10 minutes (or to a temperature of 150 degrees). Stir in coconut. Beat until mixture becomes creamy and forms into a soft mass—about 1 minute. Shape into balls. Place on wax paper and cool until firm. Store in tightly covered container in a cool place. Makes about 16 large balls or about 5 1/2 dozen small balls.

Chocolate-Covered Molasses-Coconut Balls. Prepare Old-Fashioned Molasses-Coconut Balls as directed. While balls are cooling, heat 7 squares semi-sweet chocolate squares over hot water until partly melted. Then remove from heat and stir rapidly until entirely melted. When chocolate feels cool to the touch (or when cooled to a temperature of 83 degrees), dip coconut balls quickly in the chocolate; then place on wax paper to harden. Store, covered, in a cool place.

COCONUT BUTTER DROPS
1 cup butter or margarine
1 cup sugar

CANDY TREE

A candy tree makes a fine holiday party centerpiece. Construct yours of Old-Fashioned Molasses-Coconut Balls. They resemble the "sauerkraut" balls of days past and are made with the brand-new cookie coconut.

1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 teaspoon almond extract
1/2 teaspoon double-acting baking powder
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 3/4 cups (about) cookie coconut
Cream butter until softened. Gradually add sugar and cream until light and fluffy. Add egg and beat well. Stir in flavorings; then stir in baking powder. Add flour in 4 additions, beating until well blended after each. Stir in coconut. Drop dough from teaspoon onto greased baking sheets. Bake at 375 degrees about 10 minutes. Makes 4 1/2 dozen cookies.

NOTE: Cookies should be stored in loosely covered container.

For the Twelve Days of Christmas

In the time of Henry VIII Christmas feasting really began, and with it, a superstition. Every house boasted twelve "plumb" porridges — one for each of the Twelve Days of Christmas. Good luck to those who wished on the first morning of the day; but woe to the pre-season nibbler!

The superstition has been lost, but "plum" puddings are still traditional—the grandest of all holiday desserts. So Chiquita Banana found in her travels around the country. Her favorite, of course, is made with the "musa sapientum"—the "fruit of the wise men"—most appropriate for the season. We know them as mellow and delicious bananas.

Besides Christmas pudding, bananas can add their unique and sunny flavor to all sorts of holiday confections—filled cookies, cake-like bars and delightful and surprising no-bake cake-lets—to tempt nibblers, superstitious or not, throughout the Twelve Days of Christmas.

EASY-TO-MAKE BANANA STEAMED PUDDING

1½ cups flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ teaspoon ginger
¼ cup shortening
1¼ cups sugar
2 eggs
2 bananas, mashed
1 tart apple, or 1 large raw carrot, shredded
½ cup light raisins
1 teaspoon vanilla
Sift flour with soda, salt and spices. Combine shortening, sugar, eggs and bananas; beat until mixture is very smooth and as light as possible. Stir in shredded apple or carrot, raisins and vanilla. Stir the flour mixture into the fruit mixture and blend thoroughly. Turn batter into a very well greased 1½-quart or 2-quart mold. Cover top of mold with foil, or a double thickness of waxed paper, and tie securely with soft twine. Place mold on trivet in large kettle and add enough hot water to come about half-way up sides of mold. Cover kettle, bring to a boil, then reduce heat and keep water on a gentle boil for 2 hours. Remove mold to a cake cooler and let stand a few minutes; loosen edges and invert on serving dish. Serve warm with hard sauce, or with stiffly whipped cream.

SERVES 8. BANANA FILLED COOKIES

DOUGH:

3¼ cups flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon soda
1 large banana
½ cup butter or margarine
¼ cup dairy sour cream
1½ cups sugar
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
FILLING:
¾ cup sugar
1 cup light raisins
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ cup water
½ cup finely chopped walnuts
1 large banana, diced
Sift dry ingredients together. Cream banana with butter or margarine, sour cream and sugar until mixture is fluffy and light. Beat in egg and vanilla. Gradually add flour mixture to creamed mixture, blending until smooth. Dough will be soft, so refrigerate for at least an hour. Mix filling ingredients (except walnuts and banana) and stir over low heat for about 5 minutes, or until thickened. Stir in nuts and diced banana; cool. To make cookies, divide dough and return half to refrigerator. Roll out half of dough ¼ inch thick on floured board or cloth. Cut out cookies with a scalloped cutter. Gather trimmings into a ball, re-roll and repeat cutting. Use a wide spatula to place rounds on a greased cookie sheet. Center each round with a spoonful of filling. Roll out and cut remaining dough, making a little cut-out in the center of each round. Place cut-out dough over filling, then press cookie edges together with a fork. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.), about 10 minutes for a light cookie; for a more golden cookie, bake an additional 3 to 4 minutes. Makes about 3 dozen cookies depending on size rounds cut.

BANANA ORANGE BARS

DOUGH:

4 cups flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup butter or margarine
1 cup granulated sugar
½ cup brown sugar
1 egg
¼ cup dairy sour cream
1 banana, mashed
½ teaspoon vanilla
½ teaspoon lemon extract
FILLING:
1 cup orange marmalade
¼ cup sugar
1 teaspoon cornstarch

2 bananas, diced
½ cup chopped nuts
Sift dry ingredients together. Cream butter or margarine, granulated and brown sugar, egg and sour cream until light and fluffy. Cream in banana and flavorings. Add flour mixture to creamed mixture about ½ cup at a time, beating until smooth. When mixture is smooth, spread about half the dough in a greased oblong baking pan (approx. 13x9x2). Bake in a pre-heated, moderate oven (375 degrees F.) about 18 minutes, or until surface is lightly browned and firm to the touch. Take from oven, spread with filling. Carefully spread remaining soft dough over filling, covering as completely as possible. Return pan to oven and bake an additional 20 minutes, or until done. Cool in pan and cut into bars when cold. Makes 3 to 4 dozen bars depending on size cut. (These cookie bars may be stored up to 4 days.)

FILLING:

Heat marmalade, stir in sugar and cornstarch mixed together. Cook and stir over low heat a few minutes. Add bananas and nuts; cool.

BANANA SURPRISE FRUIT CAKE-LETS

1 cup miniature marshmallows
2 cups sweet cracker crumbs + 1 cup seedless raisins
1 jar (1 lb.) diced mixed candied fruit
1 cup walnuts, chopped
¼ teaspoon each cinnamon and nutmeg
Pinch cloves
1 cup flaked coconut
2 bananas, diced
3 to 4 tablespoons orange juice

TEMPTS NIBBLERS

Plum puddings, the traditional and grandest of all holiday desserts, take on a new mellowness with the addition of bananas. This unique fruit also enhances the flavor of filled cookies, cake-like bars, and delightful and surprising no-bake cake-lets . . . to tempt nibblers throughout the Twelve Days of Christmas.

Evaporated milk (about 1 3 cup)

Combine all ingredients except liquids. Mix well, using the hands if necessary to thoroughly blend the mixture. Add the orange juice and 2 tablespoons of evaporated milk; continue mixing. Continue adding evaporated milk 1 tablespoon at a time, until mixture holds together when pressed between the hands. Place paper cup liners in muffin cups to fit, fill with fruit cake mixture, pressing it firmly to fill cup. Decorate top of each cake with bits of candied fruit, and refrigerate overnight.

Perfect For Chilly Nights

When the weather turns bitter cold, there's nothing that quite so hits the spot as a steamed pudding. Rich, yet light and filled with wonderful flavor, they should be served hot with a delicious sauce. For very special occasions, flame them with rum or brandy.

They may be made ahead and stored in the refrigerator for a few days—or for many months in the freezer. Use custard cups for individual servings—a larger bowl or mold for pudding to serve many. Fill each only 2/3 full so pudding has plenty of room to rise. Heavy Duty Reynolds Wrap makes a good cover that fits any container.

Here are recipes for two excellent puddings, a delicious sauce and directions for flaming. The fig is an excellent one with which to end a holiday dinner and the chocolate, just a terrific dessert for any cold night. Learn the easy techniques of steaming puddings and try them.

HOLIDAY STEAMED FIG PUD.

DING (8 servings)

1/4 cup butter or margarine
1/2 cup light brown sugar
1 egg
1 cup sifted all purpose flour
1/2 cup dry bread crumbs
1 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1/2 teaspoon allspice
1/4 cup milk
1/2 cup molasses
1 cup cut-up figs (about 6 ounces)
1/2 cup chopped walnuts

Cream butter with sugar; add egg and beat until fluffy. Sift dry ingredients together. Combine milk and molasses; add to batter mixture alternately with dry ingredients. Blend thoroughly, beat well. Add figs and nuts. Turn into a 1 1/2-quart buttered mold or bowl or eight 5-ounce cup molds. Cover with foil and steam large pudding two hours and small puddings one hour. Serve hot with Velvet Sauce.

STEAMED CHOCOLATE PUDGING

(8 servings)

3 tablespoons butter or margarine
2/3 cup granulated sugar
1 egg
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
2 squares unsweetened chocolate melted
1 teaspoon vanilla

Cream butter and sugar; add egg and beat until light. Sift dry ingredients together. Add to butter mixture alternately with milk; beat well. Add chocolate and vanilla. Turn into a buttered 1 1/2 quart mold or bowl or eight 5-ounce molds. Cover with foil and steam large pudding 1 1/2 hours and small puddings 40 minutes. Serve hot with Velvet Sauce.

HOW TO STEAM PUDDINGS:

Use any pan large enough to accommodate individual or large pudding molds. Put a wire rack in the bottom of the pan and place puddings on the rack. Pour in boiling water until it comes halfway up the sides of pudding containers. Cover pan and boil gently. Use towel to protect fingers when removing the finished pudding.

Individual puddings may be steamed piecemeal if no pan will hold all of them at once. The unsteamed batter will keep one week in the refrigerator and three months in the freezer. If frozen, thaw before steaming.

HOW TO FREEZE:

If you don't need the containers for reuse, simply cool, seal foil cover with freezer tape or rubber band and freeze. Or cool and turn out puddings, package in heavy duty foil wrap and freeze.

PRESSURE COOKER:

Follow directions in instruction booklet that came with the cooker. It will reduce the cooking time. Secure foil cover on mold by tying with string.

TO SERVE STEAMED PUDDINGS:

When cooking time is finished, turn down heat but keep in steamer, until the moment of serving. Turn out of mold and serve with sauce. If puddings have been refrigerated or frozen, reheat in foil covered molds at 300 F. Allow 45 minutes for individual puddings, 1 1/2 hours for a large pudding. Allow 10 minutes additional time for small frozen puddings. Thaw large frozen puddings before reheating.

VELVET SAUCE

2 eggs
1 cup confectioners' sugar
3 tablespoons lemon juice
3 tablespoons brandy, rum OR 1 teaspoon vanilla
1/2 pint heavy cream, whipped

Beat the eggs. Add sugar gradually, then the lemon juice and the flavoring continuing to beat until mixture is very light and fluffy. Fold in the whipped cream. Refrigerate until ready to serve. This is good on hot steamed puddings and on hot dessert souffles.

HOW TO FLAME PUDDING:

Heat 1/2 cup brandy or rum in a small pan until lukewarm. Light with match and pour over large pudding or individual servings arranged on a warm serving plate. Spoon flaming liquor quickly over puddings. Or without liquor moisten lumps of sugar in lemon or orange extract and arrange around pudding or place one lump on top of each individual pudding. Light lumps with match.

Glaze fruits and roasted nuts, orange blossom honey—they're all treasures of treats.

It's a magnificent way of saying "Merry Christmas"... and you immediately become labeled as a person of superior taste.

It's America's most popular! Why?

We think it's excellence of product.

Years and years ago, when we decided to bake Jane Parker Fruit Cake, we also decided to bake the best. That's why Jane Parker Fruit Cake was then and is today over 2/3 fruits and nuts.

Just enough delicious cake to hold together the bounty of cherries imported from France, pineapple from the Far East, citron from Italy, sun-drenched raisins from California and meaty pecans from the South.

We think, too, that value has made it popular. IMAGINE, THE 5-LB. CAKE COSTS ONLY $3.99. That's the same low price as last year which makes it an even greater value.

Now you know why Jane Parker Fruit Cake is America's most popular. One other thing you should know: You can buy it only at A&P. P.S. Wouldn't it make a great gift for someone?
